In the primary election in Centre County Saturday, Congressman Charles E. Patton won a splendid victory for renomination. In this county Patton had 414 majority over W. T. DeHaas. In the Congressional district, comprising Centre, Clearfield, McKean and Cameron counties, Mr. Patton scored a triumph in all four counties and carried the district by 2700. In Clearfield County his majority was 1000, in McKean it was 1300 and in Cameron it was 140. This contest was friendly and although vigorous the result was at no time in doubt. The hardest fight waged against Congressman Patton was that in Bellefonte, and where he triumphed in all three wards. DeHaas received his chief support from the Roosevelt managers in Bellefonte.

In the equally friendly and spirited contest between H. C. Quigley and Hard P. Harris for the Republican County Chairmanship, Quigley won out by 222 majority. Harris carried Bellefonte borough but ran behind Quigley in the county.

For Assembly the Republican nominal tion went to Professor C. L. Gramley, of Rebersburg, who had a majority of 593 over S. H. Wigton, of Philipsburg. Local option figured to no little extent in determining the nomination.

Centre County, as was the entire State was swept by the Roosevelt tide and the full ticket of Roosevelt national and state delegate was elected by a vote of about two to one. The Roosevelt sentiment was so strong as to have more or less bearing on the congressional and chairmanship contest.

The Republicans not only had several good stiff scraps at the primaries, but they got a lot of fun out of it and the best of feeling prevailed. Not so with the Democrats in the county, however. As a result of the primaries the local Democrats are torn asunder and hopelessly divided by factional bitterness. The reorganizers faction decisively defeated the regulars all along the line. County Chairman Kimport was re-elected over W. Harrison Walker by a majority of 833. The managers of the re-organizers faction went the limit to humiliate and humble the regulars at every point Despite the many years of faithful party service rendered year in and year out by the well known Weber family of Howard, the reorganizers worked day and night to force the defeat of Abram Weber for State delegate. Unwilling to allow even this little honor to go to Mr. Weber, the re-organizers gave orders to knife him. By means of "stickers" they elected G. L. Goodhart, of Centre Hall, over Weber by a majority of 284.

Another old line Democrat whose past service was ignored and against whom everything possible was done by the reorganizers to insure his defeat was P. Gray Meek. He was denied the honor of an election as a delegate to the Baltimore convention, the re-organizers succeeding in putting through their slated candidates John C. Barclay and Asher R. Johnson. Goodhart is pledged to support the Guthrie-Palmer element of the party at the State convention at Harrisburg. Barclay and Johnson are pledged to Woodrow Wilson for nomination for President.

For Assembly the re-organizers nominated Robert M. Foster, of State College, ignoring the claims of George A. Beezer, of Bellefonte. In every campaign for years the same crowd in Bellefonte which defeated Beezer have regularly called upon and profited by his active support. When the opportunity presented itself for them to reward him they gave him the coldest kind of a throw-down. Foster had 65 plurality over Beezer and 377 over L. T. Munson, also of Bellefonte.

1312 PERSONS DROWNED TITANIC SINKS AT SEA

Greatest of All Marine Disasters Causes Nation-Wide Sorrow.

BUT 868 WERE SAVED

Magnificent Ocean Liner Was on Maiden Trip When it Collided With Iceburg—Did Not Have Enough Boats to Rescue All on Board.

More than 1,300 persons, it is known sank to death early Monday when within four hours after she crashed into an iceberg, the mammoth White Star line steamer Titanic, bound from Liverpool to New York on her maiden voyage went to the bottom off the New Foundland banks.

Of the approximately 2,200 persons on board the giant liner, some of them of world-wide prominence, only 868 are known to have been saved. The White Star line offices in New York, while keeping up hope to the last, finally admitted that there had been a "horrible loss of life."

The disaster is one of the greatest in the marine history of the world. Nearest approaching it in magnitude were the disasters to the steamer Atlantic in 1873, when 574 lives were lost, and to La Bourgogne in 1898, with a fatality list of 571.

News of the sinking of the liner and the terrible loss of life in consequence came with all the greater shock because hope had been buoyed up all day Monday by reports that the steamship, although badly damaged, was not in a sinking condition and that all her passengers had been safely taken off. The messages were mostly unofficial, however, ane none came directly from the liner so that a lurking fear remained of possible bad news to some.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Monday night there came flashing over the wires from Cape Race within 400 miles of which the liner had struck the iceberg, word that at 2.20 o'clock Monday morning, three hours and 55 minutes after receiving her death blow, the Titanic had sunk.

ADJUST ALL HITCHES IN PRISON SITE DEAL

Releases Signed by Those Holding Ore Rights in Lands.

MR. FRANCIES NOTIFIED

Annoying Delays Resulted in Perfecting Titles to Satisfy Demands State Officials—Everything Straightened Out This Week.

Trouble-making hitches in perfecting titles to several of the tracts for the site for the new penitentiary were finally disposed of this week and so far as may be learned locally no obstacle remains in the path of Warden John Francies and the $190,000 with which the state is to formally take over the land. Mr. Francies was scheduled to arrive in Bellefonte with his $190,000 last week, but hitches over the question of ore rights on several farms interfered. There was also a hitch over a legal technicality which the state's representatives were unwilling to overlook in perfecting the title to one of the tracts. The land owners had signed up to deliver their deeds and the burden of perfecting titles could have been placed upon them, but Warden Francies refused to adopt such a course and placed it up to the people here to straighten out the kinks.

It was stated yesterday by J. Linn Harris that the persons holding ore rights in question had on Tuesday signed releases, and that furthermore the slight defect in the court records in the settlement of an estate, which had an indirect bearing on one title, had also been cleared up. Warden Francies was so notified and he stated that he expected to come to Bellefonte in a few days. To this he added the gratifying news that when he arrived he would have the state treasury checks to pay the several land owners.

The hitch over the ore rights matter gave rise to all manner of rumors during the last few days. One rumor had it that Warden Francies had declared the deal off and that Bellefonte was out of the [illegible] Upon investigation we find the facts are as above stated.

Roosevelt Landslide in Pennsylvania

Centre County Joins the Procession

Colonel Captures 65 of 76 National Delegates in the State---Local Roosevelt Delegates Win Two to One---Battle Royal for Control at State Convention.

The most remarkable upheaval in the history of Republican politics in Pennsylvania attended the primaries last Saturday. Roosevelt swept the State for the election of national and state delegates. Of the 64 national delegates chosen by congressional districts Roosevelt captured 53 and Taft but 11. In addition to this Roosevelt delegates to the Republican state convention will be overwhelmingly in the majority and will elect 12 national delegates-at-large who will go to the Chicago convention bound by instructions for the doughty Colonel.

The Roosevelt sweep carries a far deeper significance than the mere winning of 65 of the 76 national delegates from Pennsylvania. The Republican State convention which names the national delegates-at-large will also nominate candidates for State Treasurer and Auditor General and a new Republican State Committee. Control of the State Convention having been captured by the enemies of Senator Penrose, who used the Roosevelt wave for that purpose, the natural result will be the nomination o-anti-Penrose candidates for State Treasurer and Auditor General and four Congressman-at-large and also an anti-Penrose Republican State Committee. Ordinarily the Republican State Chairman is elected by the nominees of the Republican State convention, although it is entirely within the power of the convention to amend the party rules and elect the State Chairman then and there. This has frequently been done. The battle for control of the convention gives promise of being one of the greatest ever witnessed at Harrisburg.

Roosevelt national delegates were elected in every congressional district in the state but the First, Second and Third and one delegate in the Fifth, all of which are in Philadelphia; the Ninth, which is Lancaster County, and as even break in the Seventh, which is composed of Chester and Delaware Counties, and the twenty-fourth, Beaver, Washington and Lawrence Counties. Former State Senator William Flinn, of Pittsburg, who led the Roosevelt forces in the state, will personally direct the anti-Penrose program at Harrisburg at the State Convention.

The Republican national delegates from Pennsylvania elect the representative from this state to the Republican National Committee. This honor has for a number of years been held by Senator Penrose. The Roosevelt delegates in this state being overwhelmingly in the majority, will elect Flinn as Penrose's successor in the National Committee. With the Roosevelt victory as an opening wedge Flinn, it is believed, will shortly launch his candidacy to contest Penrose's seat in the United States Senate at the Legislature in 1915. Friends of Penrose are confident that he will regain control long before that time and also win a re-election to the United States Senate.

There were several spectacular sidelights to the Roosevelt upheaval. In Allegheny County John Dalzell, "Father

SHOT PROVED FATAL

J. Calvin Sunday Died From Bullet Wound Inflicted Upon Himself.

J Calvin Sunday, who shot himself on Monday morning of last week while at Ward's store, at Baileyville, died without regaining consciousness on Friday night at 9.30 o'clock. His death occurred at his home two miles north of Penna Furnace, in Tadpole valley, on the well known Sunday farm which is one of the best in that valley and which formerly belonged to the father of the deceased. The Sundays all display industry and thrift and J. Calvin was one of the representative men in that district. He held numerous township offices, had been president of the school board and at the time of his death was road supervisor, so that his loss is keenly felt in his home community.

He was the [illegible] of Sa[illegible] Lydia Gates Sunday and was [illegible] Bellefonte on June 17, 1871. [illegible] was a small boy his parents moved to West Ferguson, where he spent his entire life on a farm. On march 28, 1893, he married Miss Margaret J. Mays, daughter of the late T. James Mayes, and to their union was born three daughters and one son: Annie, Rosie, David and Paul E., all at home. Of his father's family there are five brothers surviving: Elmer, now at home; Luther, of Fairbrook; George, of Michigan, Rev. Orrie Sunday, of Eptha, Pa., and Rev. William Sunday, of New Bethlehem; also his mother who resides nearby the old farm.

Burial was made on Monday morning at 9.30 o'clock, in the Gatesburg cemetery. Rev. Dr. C. T. Aikens, of Selinsgrove officiated. The funeral was one of the largest ever held there.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Brint Mongan Injured by Passenger Train on Tuesday Night.

Brint Mongan, who figures every now and then in the local news, narrowly escaped being killed on Tuesday evening. He was riding on the engine tender of the evening passenger train on its run here from Milesburg. Whether he attempted to jump off or was trying to look up the track and was brushed off by a freight car, is not known. When the train was making the return trip to Milesburg, heading for Lock Haven, Mongan was noticed by the engineer lving alongside the tracks. The train was stopped and Mongan picked up and brought into the Bellefonte station.

After a hurried examination it was found that the young man was not seriously injured. He was removed to the Bellefonte hospital, where it was found that he had sustained bruises about the face and head and one arm.

Hospital Notes.

Operations—Jonathan Royer, Zion; John DeMarko, Bellefonte; Margaret Glenn, Pine Grove Mills.

Admitted for Treatment—George Miller, State College; Wilson Rogers, Beech Creek; Mrs. Susie Scach, Snow Shoe.

Born a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCoy.

37 patients now in the hospital.

Naturalization Court.

Judge Orvis has designated the third Tuesday of June and the third Tuesday of November in each year for holding a regular naturalization court in Centre County. The setting aside of regular days for holding such a court was done to conform with the new naturalization law.

In the primary election in Centre County Saturday, Congressman Charles E. Patton won a splendid victory for renomination. In this county Patton had 414 majority over W. T. DeHaas. In the Congressional district, comprising Centre, Clearfield, McKean and Cameron counties, Mr. Patton scored a triumph in all four counties and carried the district by 2700. In Clearfield County his majority was 1000, in McKean it was 1300 and in Cameron it was 140. This contest was friendly and although vigorous the result was at no time in doubt. The hardest fight waged against Congressman Patton was that in Bellefonte, and where he triumphed in all three wards. DeHaas received his chief support from the Roosevelt managers in Bellefonte.

In the equally friendly and spirited contest between H. C. Quigley and Hard P. Harris for the Republican County Chairmanship, Quigley won out by 222 majority. Harris carried Bellefonte borough but ran behind Quigley in the county.

For Assembly the Republican nomination went to Professor C. L. Gramley, of Rebersburg, who had a majority of 593 over S. H. Wigton, of Philipsburg. Local option figured to no little extent in determining the nomination.

Centre County, as was the entire State was swept by the Roosevelt tide and the full ticket of Roosevelt national and state delegate was elected by a vote of about two to one. The Roosevelt sentiment was so strong as to have more or less bearing on the congressional and chairmanship contest.

The Republicans not only had several good stiff scraps at the primaries, but they got a lot of fun out of it and the best of feeling prevailed. Not so with the Democrats in the county, however. As a result of the primaries the local Democrats are torn asunder and hopelessly divided by factional bitterness. The reorganizers faction decisively defeated the regulars all along the line. County Chairman Kimport was re-elected over W. Harrison Walker by a majority of 833. The managers of the re-organizers faction went the limit to humiliate and humble the regulars at every point Despite the many years of faithful party service rendered year in and year out by the well known Weber family of Howard, the reorganizers worked day and night to force the defeat of Abram Weber for State delegate. Unwilling to allow even this little honor to go to Mr. Weber, the re-organizers gave orders to knife him. By means of "stickers" they elected G. L. Goodhart, of Centre Hall, over Weber by a majority of 284.

Another old line Democrat whose past service was ignored and against whom everything possible was done by the reorganizers to insure his defeat was P. Gray Meek. He was denied the honor of an election as a delegate to the Baltimore convention, the re-organizers succeeding in putting through their slated candidates John C. Barclay and Asher R. Johnson. Goodhart is pledged to support the Guthrie-Palmer element of the party at the State convention at Harrisburg. Barclay and Johnson are pledged to Woodrow Wilson for nomination for President.

For Assembly the re-organizers nominated Robert M. Foster, of State College, ignoring the claims of George A. Beezer, of Bellefonte. In every campaign for years the same crowd in Bellefonte which defeated Beezer have regularly called upon and profited by his active support. When the opportunity presented itself for them to reward him they gave him the coldest kind of a throw-down. Foster had 65 plurality over Beezer and 377 over L. T. Munson, also of Bellefonte.

1312 PERSONS DROWNED TITANIC SINKS AT SEA

Greatest of All Marine Disasters Causes Nation-Wide Sorrow.

BUT 868 WERE SAVED

Magnificent Ocean Liner Was on Maiden Trip When it Collided With Iceburg—Did Not Have Enough Boats to Rescue All on Board.

More than 1,300 persons, it is known sank to death early Monday when within four hours after she crashed into an iceberg, the mammoth White Star line steamer Titanic, bound from Liverpool to New York on her maiden voyage went to the bottom off the New Foundland banks.

Of the approximately 2,200 persons on board the giant liner, some of them of world-wide prominence, only 868 are known to have been saved. The White Star line offices in New York, while keeping up hope to the last, finally admitted that there had been a "horrible loss of life."

The disaster is one of the greatest in the marine history of the world. Nearest approaching it in magnitude were the disasters to the steamer Atlantic in 1873, when 574 lives were lost, and to La Bourgogne in 1898, with a fatality list of 571.

News of the sinking of the liner and the terrible loss of life in consequence came with all the greater shock because hope had been buoyed up all day Monday by reports that the steamship, although badly damaged, was not in a sinking condition and that all her passengers had been safely taken off. The messages were mostly unofficial, however, ane none came directly from the liner so that a lurking fear remained of possible bad news to some.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Monday night there came flashing over the wires from Cape Race within 400 miles of which the liner had struck the iceberg, word that at 2.20 o'clock Monday morning, three hours and 55 minutes after receiving her death blow, the Titanic had sunk.

ADJUST ALL HITCHES IN PRISON SITE DEAL

Releases Signed by Those Holding Ore Rights in Lands.

MR. FRANCIES NOTIFIED

Annoying Delays Resulted in Perfecting Titles to Satisfy Demands State Officials—Everything Straightened Out This Week.

Trouble-making hitches in perfecting titles to several of the tracts for the site for the new penitentiary were finally disposed of this week and so far as may be learned locally no obstacle remains in the path of Warden John Francies and the $190,000 with which the state is to formally take over the land. Mr. Francies was scheduled to arrive in Bellefonte with his $190,000 last week, but hitches over the question of ore rights on several farms interfered. There was also a hitch over a legal technicality which the state's representatives were unwilling to overlook in perfecting the title to one of the tracts. The land owners had signed up to deliver their deeds and the burden of perfecting titles could have been placed upon them, but Warden Francies refused to adopt such a course and placed it up to the people here to straighten out the kinks.

It was stated yesterday by J. Linn Harris that the persons holding ore rights in question had on Tuesday signed releases, and that furthermore the slight defect in the court records in the settlement of an estate, which had an indirect bearing on one title, had also been cleared up. Warden Francies was so notified and he stated that he expected to come to Bellefonte in a few days. To this he added the gratifying news that when he arrived he would have the state treasury checks to pay the several land owners.

The hitch over the ore rights matter gave rise to all manner of rumors during the last few days. One rumor had it that Warden Francies had declared the deal off and that Bellefonte was out of the [illegible] investigation we find the facts are as above stated.

Roosevelt Landslide in Pennsylvania

Centre County Joins the Procession

Colonel Captures 65 of 76 National Delegates in the State---Local Roosevelt Delegates Win Two to One---Battle Royal for Control at State Convention.

The most remarkable upheaval in the history of Republican politics in Pennsylvania attended the primaries last Saturday. Roosevelt swept the State for the election of national and state delegates. Of the 64 national delegates chosen by congressional districts Roosevelt captured 53 and Taft but 11. In addition to this Roosevelt delegates to the Republican state convention will be overwhelmingly in the majority and will elect 12 national delegates-at-large who will go to the Chicago convention bound by instructions for the doughty Colonel.

The Roosevelt sweep carries a far deeper significance than the mere winning of 65 of the 76 national delegates from Pennsylvania. The Republican State convention which names the national delegates-at-large will also nominate candidates for State Treasurer and Auditor General and a new Republican State Committee. Control of the State Convention having been captured by the enemies of Senator Penrose, who used the Roosevelt wave for that purpose, the natural result will be the nomination o anti-Penrose candidates for State Treasurer and Auditor General and four Congressman-at-large and also an anti-Penrose Republican State Committee. Ordinarily the Republican State Chairman is elected by the nominees of the Republican State convention, although it is entirely within the power of the convention to amend the party rules and elect the State Chairman then and there. This has frequently been done. The battle for control of the convention gives promise of being one of the greatest ever witnessed at Harrisburg.

Roosevelt national delegates were elected in every congressional district in the state but the First, Second and Third and one delegate in the Fifth, all of which are in Philadelphia; the Ninth, which is Lancaster County, and as even break in the Seventh, which is composed of Chester and Delaware Counties, and the twenty-fourth, Beaver, Washington and Lawrence Counties. Former State Senator William Flinn, of Pittsburg, who led the Roosevelt forces in the state, will personally direct the anti-Penrose program at Harrisburg at the State Convention.

The Republican national delegates from Pennsylvania elect the representative from this state to the Republican National Committee. This honor has for a number of years been held by Senator Penrose. The Roosevelt delegates in this state being overwhelmingly in the majority, will elect Flinn as Penrose's successor in the National Committee. With the Roosevelt victory as an opening wedge Flinn, it is believed, will shortly launch his candidacy to contest Penrose's seat in the United States Senate at the Legislature in 1915. Friends of Penrose are confident that he will regain control long before that time and also win a re-election to the United States Senate.

There were several spectacular sidelights to the Roosevelt upheaval. In Allegheny County John Dalzell, "Father

SHOT PROVED FATAL

J. Calvin Sunday Died From Bullet Wound Inflicted Upon Himself.

J Calvin Sunday, who shot himself on Monday morning of last week while at Ward's store, at Baileyville, died without regaining consciousness on Friday night at 9.30 o'clock. His death occurred at his home two miles north of Penna Furnace, in Tadpole valley, on the well known Sunday farm which is one of the best in that valley and which formerly belonged to the father of the deceased. The Sundays all display industry and thrift and J. Calvin was one of the representative men in that district. He held numerous township offices, had been president of the school board and at the time of his death was road supervisor, so that his loss is keenly felt in his home community.

He was the [illegible] of Sa[illegible] Lydia Gates Sunday and was [illegible] Bellefonte on June 17, 1871. [illegible] was a small boy his parents moved to West Ferguson, where he spent his entire life on a farm. On march 28, 1893, he married Miss Margaret J. Mays, daughter of the late T. James Mayes, and to their union was born three daughters and one son: Annie, Rosie, David and Paul E., all at home. Of his father's family there are five brothers surviving: Elmer, now at home; Luther, of Fairbrook; George, of Michigan, Rev. Orrie Sunday, of Eptha, Pa., and Rev. William Sunday, of New Bethlehem; also his mother who resides nearby the old farm.

Burial was made on Monday morning at 9.30 o'clock, in the Gatesburg cemetery. Rev. Dr. C. T. Aikens, of Selinsgrove officiated. The funeral was one of the largest ever held there.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Brint Mongan Injured by Passenger Train on Tuesday Night.

Brint Mongan, who figures every now and then in the local news, narrowly escaped being killed on Tuesday evening. He was riding on the engine tender of the evening passenger train on its run here from Milesburg. Whether he attempted to jump off or was trying to look up the track and was brushed off by a freight car, is not known. When the train was making the return trip to Milesburg, heading for Lock Haven, Mongan was noticed by the engineer lving alongside the tracks. The train was stopped and Mongan picked up and brought into the Bellefonte station.

After a hurried examination it was found that the young man was not seriously injured. He was removed to the Bellefonte hospital, where it was found that he had sustained bruises about the face and head and one arm.

Hospital Notes.

Operations—Jonathan Royer, Zion; John DeMarko, Bellefonte; Margaret Glenn, Pine Grove Mills.

Admitted for Treatment—George Miller, State College; Wilson Rogers, Beech Creek; Mrs. Susie Scach, Snow Shoe.

Born a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCoy.

37 patients now in the hospital.

Naturalization Court.

Judge Orvis has designated the third Tuesday of June and the third Tuesday of November in each year for holding a regular naturalization court in Centre County. The setting aside of regular days for holding such a court was done to conform with the new naturalization law.

CLARA BARTON DEAD

Founder of Red Cross Society Passed Away at Grand Old Age of 91 Years.

Miss Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross Society, died at her home in Glen Echo, Md., at 9 o'clock last Friday morning. The cause of her death was chronic pneumonia, with which she was stricken about a year ago. Her brother, Stephen Barton, of Boston, was with her when she died.

Miss Barton was born at Oxford, Mass., in 1821. Miss Barton celebrated her ninety-first birthday anniversary December 25, when she received many messages of congratulation from all parts of the world.

Clara Barton might properly be called the Florence Nightingale of America. Like her British prototype her works of mercy were not confined to her native land, but were carried even into the eastern hemisphere. She will be written down in history as the founder of the Red Cross in America, but her powerful personality also made an indelible impression upon the international organization itself through her active participation in the periodical conferences at Geneva, Carlsruhe, Rome, Vienna and St. Petersburg.

At these conferences, Miss Barton did not hesitate to suggest radical amendments to existing rules. Backed by the weight of her extensive experience in the field in time of war and disaster, these were received with favor and generally adopted.

Miss Barton was 40 years of age when she first turned her attention to the great works of humanity, which have made her name famous. Her experience as a school teacher and the organizer of public school systems in New Jersey taught her methodical habits and gave her the experience in executive work which made her a commanding figure in the direction of Red Cross affairs.

That organization was established in America in 1881 and Miss Barton was its president from that date until 1904. Before that time she had made a name for herself by her services on battlefields beginning in the Civil War and extending through the Franco-Prussian war. Congress recognized her good offices in the first case by an appropriation of $15,000, to be disbursed by her in searching for missing men after the various great battles of the war.

Miss Barton's work became more extended with the organization of the American Red Cross and covered the new field of catastrophies in time of peace. She distributed relief to the sufferers from the Johnstown flood and went to Russia in 1892 to carry food to the famine sufferers there. In the following year she was ministering to the destitute survivors of the tidal wave which struck South Carolina and Florida. In 1896 she was aiding the Armenian families decimated by the Turks, and when yellow fever appeared among the American troops in Cuba following the battles around Santiago, it was Clara Barton, who at the request of President McKinley organized field hospitals and personally spent her time on the battle lines.

Her last work of national importance was in connection with the great Galveston flood relief in 1900.

In 1904 the Red Cross was organized, President (then Secretary) Taft, being chosen as president, and Miss Barton, then far advanced in age, and somewhat broken in health from exposure and hardships, retired from active connection with the organization.

She resided for the last seven years at her home at Glen Echo, Md., on the banks of the upper Potomac. During her lifetime she received many decorations from foreign countries in recognition of her services to humanity, and her varied experiences have been recorded in permanent form in her liberal contributions to literature, mostly relating to the activities of the Red Cross.

Division Camps at Gettysburg.

Announcement has been made by Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart that the division encampment of the National Guard of Pennsylvania will be held this summer at Gettysburg. The camp will take place between July 22 and 31, each organization to be in camp eight days. The site of the camp is different from that occupied two years ago by the division. All organizations except the naval militia, second brigade of infantry, second squadron of cavalry and battery C will encamp at Gettysburg. The naval militia will cruise during the summer and the other organizations will encamp with the regulars at Mount Gretna early in July.

HELPING YOUNG MEN

State Y. M. C. A. Extends Assistance Work Into Rural Districts.

The State Young Men's Christian Association of Pennsylvania is pursuing an admirable plan by which young men in towns and villages without Associations may be accorded some of the advantages of the organization. The State Committee is appointing in these places a representative, known as a Corresponding Member. His chief duty is to keep the State office informed when any young man leaves home to settle elsewhere for any purpose whatever. The State Committee forwards this information to the Association or Church of the place in which the young man is to locate. He is met cordially and helped in finding a congenial home, in securing employment and is introduced to the helpful influence and Christian fellowship of his new environment.

The Corresponding Member will arrange for meetings in the interest of the young men of his community, and furnish information regarding the Association, which stands ready to serve to the extent of its ability any young man who may come to them. To its members the Association provides social parlors, evening educational classes, entertainments, lectures and practical talks, gymnasiums, employment bureaus, boarding house registers, classes for Bible study, young men's meetings, etc. These privileges are offered at so small a fee that any young man can afford them. There are now 189 Associations in cities, towns, colleges and among railroad men in the State of Pennsylvania besides Corresponding members in many of the smaller places.

In response to a very general demand for the extension of the Association work into the smaller towns and villages and rural sections of the State, the State Committee is undertaking the inauguration of County work, which federates the villages and rural communities of a county and secures a County Secretary to lead in work for men and boys. The Corresponding Member co-operates in this extension of the Association's activities in aid of local young men.

The State Committee has recently appointed Mr. Frank H. Clemson as Corresponding Member for Stormstown, Centre County. He will gladly give any aid or information about work for young men that may be in his power.

Mrs. Mary Ann Ale Dead.

Mrs. Mary Ann Ale, for many years a resident of Warriors Mark, and more recently of Altoona, died at the Blair County Hospital [illegible] last Friday morning, of diseases incident to old age, after an illness of several months. Deceased was born at Shaffersville, Huntingdon county, and had she lived until next October would have been 83 years of age. She removed to Altoona some fifteen years ago from Warriors Mark, where she had resided for a number of years. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church all her life. Her husband, Alexander Ale, preceded her to the grave twenty-one years ago. She is survived by eleven children, as follows: Harry Ale, Mrs. Ada Bolger, Mrs. Rose Nearhoof and Miss Clara, of Altoona; D. S., of Juniata; Mrs. Blanche Geist, of Sinking Valley; Mrs. Irene Bressler, of Tyrone; Ezra C., of Grazierville; J. H., of Johnstown; Elmer, of South Dakota, and Mrs. Bertha Kipple, of Los Angeles, Cal. The remains were taken on Saturday to Warriors Mark for interment.

Mrs. Charles Kline, 42 No. 8th St., Easton, Pa., desires others to realize the value of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs and colds. She says, "Several members of my family have been cured of bad coughs and colds by Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It soothes and relieves the irritation in the throat and loosens up the cold in the lungs. I have always found it a reliable cough cure, and always recommend it highly." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Mrs. Mary E. Keefer Dead.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Keefer, widow of Jacob Keefer, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Bohn, at Altoona at 9.45 o'clock last Friday morning, of paralysis, with which she was stricken a month ago. Deceased was born at WarriorsMark, June 24, 1835, and had resided in Altoona for a period of twenty-six years. Her husband preceded her to the grave thirty-five years ago and she is survived by these children: Daniel C., of Joliet, Ill.; John H., Charles S., Mrs. L. C. McFarland and Mrs. W. H. Bohn, of Altoona. She is also survived by these brothers and sisters, Mrs. S. C. States, of Buckingham, Ill.; Miss Rebecca Keefer, of Birmingham; Mrs. David Funk and Daniel Chamberlain, of Warriors-Mark; Mrs. Susan Fetterhoff and Mrs. Margaret Fetterhoff, of Spruce Creek, and Mrs. Justice Stahm, of Baltimore.

H. B. Creep, 59 No. 18th St., Harrisburg, Pa., says "Sometime ago I had occasion to use Foley Kidney Pills for my kidneys which were unhealthy and very irregular in action. Now after taking Foley Kidney Pills for a short time only, I have no pains whatever and the kidneys are acting properly and regularly. This was brought about by the use of Foley Kidney Pills which I heartily recommend." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

GEN. FRED GRANT DEAD

Noted Son of Famous General and President Expired Suddenly.

Major General Frederick Dent Grant died suddenly at the Hotel Buckingham in New York, shortly after midnight last Thursday night.

The news was far more sudden. It came less than an hour after the first alarm had been sounded that General Grant was even seriously ill. The alarm itself had come before it had been generally learned that General Grant was even in the city, as his presence in New York had been kept a secret.

"Get a physician, quick. The general is dying," this telephone call, received at the night desk of the Buckingham was the first news.

A bell boy was despatched to the office of Dr. Abbey nearby but the physician was not at home. Mrs. Grant was notified and chafing at the delay she cried back hysterically:

"Get an ambulance. Get anybody."

The alarm was sent to police headquarters from which an ambulance was despatched. Calls were put in at random also for physicians in the Fifth avenue district and within a few minutes two had responded.

When the ambulance arrived, within four minutes of the alarm, it was said that General Grant probably was dying. He was in too dangerous a condition to remove and the ambulance drove away.

At midnight the general died. In the half hour previous the alarm over his condition had aroused all the newspaper offices, in most of which the reports were regarded with caution in view of the fact that General Grant's presence in New York was not known. Many newspaper men were on the scene in a few minutes however, but as none was allowed to go to the aparments, the exact state of affairs was a matter of doubt until an end was put to all when the hotel clerk was heard to repeat over the telephone: "Grant is dead."

The first hand information as to the cause of death was choking but later it was stated that the cause was heart failure following diabetes and attending digestive disturbances.

The following statement was made by General Grant's attending physicians, Drs. Abbey and Bench:

"General Frederick D. Grant died suddenly of heart failure, without premonition at the Buckingham hotel at midnight, April 11, after retiring at 11 o'clock apparently in better condition than for several weeks. He had returned from his recent trip much improved and looking remarkably well and vigorous. His physician, who had been with him during the afternoon, had congratulated him on his good health. He expressed himself as feeling rejoiced at his renewed strength.

"General Grant had [illegible] from diabetes and the attending digestive disturbances, which seemed, however, to be perfectly under control.

"This sudden fatal termination came as a great surprise. His wife and nurse were with him at the time and the physicians who were called at once, found the heart had stopped instantly."

Major Grant, the eldest son of Ulysses S. Grant, the eighteenth president of the United States, was born at St. Louis, Mo, May 30, 1850. He was with his father during a part of the Civil war, witnessed the capture of Forts Henry and Donelson, and went with his father's command through the Virginia campaign. He witnessed also the fights at Corinth, Vicksburg, Nashville and Petersburg.

After the war young Grant entered West Point and was graduated in 1871. For a year he served as civil engineer for the Union Pacific railway and in 1872 accompanied General Sherman on a trip to Europe.

Grant served as an aide-de-camp of General Sheridan and took part in the campaigns against the Indians. He served with Major General Stanley in the Yellowstone expedition and in 1874 in the Black Hills expedition, after which he accompanied his father around the world.

He resigned his commission as colonel in the army in 1881 and for a number of years was engaged in various enterprises. He was appointed minister to Austria by President Harrison in 1888, but resigned on the election of Mr. Cleveland to the presidency. Under the reform administration of Mayor Strong, he was one of New York's police commissioners, but at the outbreak of the war with Spain in 1898 he became colonel in the Fourteenth New York infantry, and was appointed brigadier general of volunteers on May 27. On February 18, 1901, he was appointed brigadier general, U. S. A., and reached the grade of major general five years later.

In 1874 he married Ida M. Honore, daughter of Henry Hamilton Honore, of Chicago.

Mrs. C. Brothers of McKeesport, Pa., tells how Foley Kidney Pills cured her daughter. "For some time my daughter had a serious disorder of the kidneys and found in Foley Kidney Pills speedy relief and later a complete cure. The use of Foley Kidney Pills did for her in a short time all that is claimed they will do and I can highly recommend them." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

"I suffered habitually from constipation. Doan's Regulets relieved and strengthened the bowels, so that they have been regular ever since."—A. E. Davis, grocer, Sulphur Springs, Tex.

STATE FIRST IN RYE

Second in Potatoes, Buckwheat and Hay Statistics Show.

Statistics of Pennsylvania crops and farms for 1911 have been issued by A. L. Martin, Deputy Secretary of Agriculture the compilation being made from reports supplied by agents of the department in every county. The figures show the State to stand first in the United States as a grower of rye, the production being 6,400,000 bushels; second as a grower of potatoes with 28,160,000 bushels; buckwheat, with 4,433,000. The wheat production is given at 27,697,000 bushels, making the State ninth in the Union as a wheat-grower, and the corn at 65,926,000 bushels, making the State seventeenth for corn.

The total staple crop values are given as $172,909,000, hay being the most valuable with a rating of $66,495,000.

The value of farm animals is given at $329,740,545, of which $67,986,975 is for horses, numbering 549,168 head.

Detailed figures showing average prices for produce live stock and wages in 1911 are given for every county in the State.

Pius X and Woman Suffrage.

The Pope is decidedly against woman suffrage and does not approve the struggle for woman's rights, but he certainly does not believe that woman is inferior to man. The members of the Union Among Catholic Women recently held a meeting in Rome and one hundred and thirty delegates from all parts of Italy as well as over five hundred members belonging to all classes of society assembled at the Vatican to be blessed by the Pope.

Pius X after giving his ring to be kissed by each member present made a speech in which he dwelt on the mission of women in social life. The Pope thanked "the good and brave daughters" for coming in such great numbers to see him and exhorted them to remain united under the guidance of ecclesiastical authority, says McCall's Magizine for May.

"By so doing," the Pope continued, "you can accomplish worthily the most noble mission that women have in society. It is said that you belong to the weaker sex, but you can show the world wonderful examples of firmness which the so-called strong sex lacks, as they do not know the sublime virtue of sacrifice.

"Your mission is threefold. First is a mission of religion through diffusion of religious education; practical teaching more than anything else is required of you, and you must afford examples of Christian virtues. Then there is a mission of charity which you can accomplish in a thousand ways. Do not only help the poor, but also and more those who need to be recalled onto the path of good and remember that truth spoken by a woman can work miracles.

"Your third mission is that of sacrifice, and I need not give you any recommendations on this score, as you understand and accomplish well this mission daily. If you accomplish these three missions," concluded the Pope, laying special stress on the word "three," "you fully deserve God's blessing for yourselves, and also for all other women who need comfort in their affliction."

Where He Was

On St. Patrick's Day In the Morning

By NORA B. SHEA

It was the evening before St. Patrick's day, 1765, in Ireland. The moon was at the full and shone with unusual brightness. Dennis O'Donohue, a young man of twenty-two, mounted on a black mare, was trotting on a road between Killarney and Tralee on his way to a ball at the latter place. Suddenly catching sight of a light some distance from the road, he drew rein and thrust his hand in under his waistcoat to pull his watch from his fob. It was not there, and he remembered that he had left it at home.

Now, what he wished his watch for was to note the time that he might decide whether to attempt something that popped into his head at seeing the light referred to. In the house where it shone lived Eileen Mavourneen, a young girl whom Dennis would have gladly wooed had he been permitted to do so. Dennis was inclined to be a trifle wild, and Eileen was warned by her parents to have nothing to do with him.

Nevertheless the young man was especially attractive to girls. He was tall and lithe, and a mass of light curls fell down over his shoulders. Tender hearted to a fault, it was suspected that for the benefit of others in distress he had trespassed on the law by taking a purse on the highway. The O'Grady, a rich landowner, had been stopped one night on the road, and later one of his tenants, a poor woman for whose eviction he had given orders, paid the rent in coins, one of which, a pocket piece, The O'Grady recognized as having been taken from him by the highwayman. The story got abroad that Dennis O'Donohue, sympathizing with the woman, had robbed the landlord and given the money to his tenant to save her from eviction. That the robbery had taken place for that very purpose was true, but Dennis O'Donohue had nothing to do with it.

It occurred to Dennis that he would love to take Eileen with him to the ball at Tralee. Her father and mother were elderly people, and it was their custom to go to bed at 9 o'clock every night. It might be possible to take her with him and bring her back without their knowing of her absence. The hour was about 9, but he did not know whether it was a little before or a little after 9. He dare not go before and did not like to lose time by going too long after.

While he was deliberating he heard the sound of horse's hoofs coming from the direction of Tralee. He would await the rider's coming and ask the time. A man on horseback drew near, and when he came up Dennis said in a mild voice:

"I beg your pardon for stopping you, sir, but would you tell me what o'clock it is?"

Dennis' back was to the moon, while the horseman faced it, and Dennis recognized The O'Grady. The O'Grady hesitated. The voice sounded like that of O'Donohue, by whom he believed he had been robbed. Dennis' horse was restless and, turning, exposed Dennis' face to the moon. The O'Grady thrust his hand under his coat as if to take out his watch, but instead drew a pistol and, pointing it at Dennis' head, said:

"It is time for you to move on, Dennis O'Donohue, and I would advise you to go to one of the American colonies, for if you ever appear in Killarney again I'll bring you up for highway robbery. Twice is once too often for you to rob the same person!"

With this, still covering Dennis with his pistol, he urged on his horse, leaving Dennis standing in the road mute with astonishment. Dennis knew at once that this evidence against him, taken with the suspicion of another robbery, would convict him of being a highwayman, and that meant either a long imprisonment or death. He thought of taking The O'Grady's advice and, riding over to Cork, take ship for Virginia. Instead he concluded to ride over to see Eileen and tell her what had occurred. This would lessen the blow to her, and she could explain the matter to his father and mother.

The hour now made no difference to him, so he put spurs to his horse and on reaching the gate threw the bridle rein over a picket and went up the walk to the house. Tiptoeing on to the porch, he saw Eileen sitting alone in the living room. A tap on the window arrested her attention, and, turning, she saw Dennis' face against the pane. Putting her finger to her lips, she went softly to the door and led him into the room.

"What is it, Dennis?" she asked, alarmed at his rueful appearance.

"Have your father and mother gone to bed?" he whispered.

"Yes."

Dennis told his story, finishing by saying that he saw no hope for him but to go to Virginia. Eileen's countenance fell at this. She stood thinking.

"Why don't you prove an alibi, Dennis?" she asked presently.

"An alibi?"

"Yes. The magistrate will have only The O'Grady's word that he met you on the road. If you can prove you were somewhere else his evidence will be worthless."

"But how can I do that?"

"Have you a good horse?"

"No better in Ireland. I borrowed my friend Mike Shaunessy's mare. She's not only won races for him, but has great endurance."

"Well, ride all night, and in the morning talk with some one you can get for a witness to testify that you were with him."

"On the morning of St. Patrick's day! Ah, Eileen you're a jewel!"

And so after a dozen kisses Dennis remounted the mare and away he went in the moonlight. Riding on to Tralee, which place he made in half an hour, he took a road leading northeastward to Limerick. It is just fifty miles from Tralee to Limerick. It would not do to ask for relays of horses, for this might give away the secret of his ride. It was 10 o'clock when he started. He rode thirty miles of the distance, rested his horse for two hours, then went on, reaching Limerick at 7 in the morning. But instead of going into the town he left it on his right and, crossing the river Shannon, struck out for Ennis, some twenty miles farther on. But he had no idea of using the mare to do this distance and, now that he was so far from home, concluded to leave her with a farmer and take a fresh mount. This he did and at 10 o'clock in the morning rode up to an inn in Ennis.

The bells were ringing for mass, and Dennis joined a throng going to the church. Seeing a priest going from his house to the church, Dennis joined him and said:

"Father, I desire to make a contribution on this blessed day of our patron saint, and I beg of you to receive it."

To this the priest agreed, and Dennis gave him his contribution.

"Now, father," said Dennis, "will you tell me the time?"

"There's a clock in the tower of the church beyond. You can see for yourself."

"I'm nearsighted. Will you use your own eyes for me?"

"It's 10 o'clock and 25 minutes."

"Are you sure?"

"I am."

"And I'm giving you 20 shillings for a contribution to the church at twenty-five minutes past 10 on the morning of St. Patrick's day, and don't you forget it."

"I'll not do that," said the priest.

Dennis went back to the inn, ate a good breakfast and, his horse having been fed, mounted and rode back to where he had left the mare. She, too, had been rested sufficiently to go on toward home, but at a slow gait. Dennis reached Killarney that night and the next morning appeared on the street laughing and talking with his friends with his usual good nature.

When The O'Grady heard that Dennis had remained to face a charge of robbery on the highway he made a charge against him, and Dennis was arrested, much to his apparent surprise. When the prisoner was brought before the magistrate for examination the charge was read and he was asked whether he pleaded guilty or not guilty.

"I could hardly be guilty, your worship," replied Dennis, "seeing that I was not where the charge specifies at a time when my accuser was stopped."

"Where were you?"

"I was in Ennis, your worship."

"That's seventy miles away. At what time were you in Ennis?"

"I was there on the morning of St. Patrick's day."

"Can you prove that?"

"Yes, your worship."

"By whom?"

"By a witness who saw me there at the time."

Dennis was given opportunity to bring his witness to Killarney, and when a priest of the church testified that the prisoner gave him on St. Patrick's day, at 10:25 in the morning, 20 shillings, no one dared gainsay the truth of the statement. There was but one inference to be made, which was that The O'Grady was mistaken in his man.

Nevertheless The O'Grady was not only sure that Dennis was the person that he had met on the highway, but was sure that he had intended to rob him. If he had had no such design he would have admitted his identity and disclaimed any intention except to learn the time. The accuser blustered and asked for time to prove that the alibi was a put up job, but those present at the trial considered this a mark of disrespect for the priest who had given testimony, and the magistrate denied the request. Dennis was acquitted and carried out of the court on the shoulders of his friends.

Now, Eileen Mavourneen's father was a "good old Irish gentleman, one of the rare old stock," and, though he certainly would not have a highwayman for a son-in-law, he was highly appreciative of the shrewdness of his race. During Dennis' imprisonment he constantly reminded his daughter that he had been right about her lover from the first. Eileen said nothing till after Dennis was acquitted, when she told her father the whole story.

The old gentleman laughed all that day and, since he did not like The O'Grady over much, vowed that the defense was the smartest trick that had ever been perpetrated in the county. He told Eileen to bring Dennis to dinner that he might hear the story from his own lips. Dennis came, and the old gentleman was much pleased with the energy and rapidity of his movement, but when he heard that Eileen had proposed the plan he was delighted and, taking his daughter in his arms, told her that so long headed a girl must be better able to choose a husband for herself than her father could choose for her.

For long after that when Dennis would meet her acquaintances he would be greeted by:

"Dennis O'Donohue, where were ye on St. Patrick's day in the morning?"

Should an Actress Marry?

I have been asked this question. Should an actress marry? so often, both directly, and by more or less heavily veiled suggestions, that I am glad of the opportunity to answer it—as I answered it for myself.

By this beginning I know I end all suspense to my story. But there is room for discussion. An actress should marry, just like any other woman—if the right man comes along. No more than any of her sisters can she be sure that he is the one man, not until they have tried life together. It is patent, too, if you think a minute, that in many ways a woman in the theatrical profession is more apt to be misled than other women are.

Life on the stage is unreal. It lifts one into the clouds; it plunges one into the depths. Amid all its distractions and despairs it requires an extraordinary degree of self-control and common sense to keep one's head. Pictured in all its allurements, as the stage almost invariably is, it would be difficult to convince the average outsider of the terrible loneliness, the utter soul weariness that so often possesses the woman who apparently has garnered all the fruits of success. And yet, I think if you could see into the heart of most of our leading actresses who have made their art their all, you would find so great an emptiness there that you would forget your envy for a moment and only sympathy would remain, writes Mary Mannering in the May McCall's.

For a woman is always first a woman, and then whatever else she may make herself. As a woman she has an inherent right to the protection of a home, the love of her husband, and the surrender of herself to her children. Mind you, I say as a woman she has the inalienable right to these things; as an artist—well, I am not so sure, but I think she has. I think that in marrying she should find new strength for better work than she could do unfortified by the knowledge of the love and confidence that abetted her. If she is happily married her first interest is apt to be her home and children. The point that is made by those who hold against an actress marrying is just this—that she will become absorbed in her home to the detriment of her work on the stage, or that her work will make her home life merely incidental.

But today we are beginning to concede that a woman has the same right to individual expression, to the fullest development of her own nature, as a man. I do believe, however, that an actress' chance of happiness is greater if she marries outside of the profession. Of course, it is hard on the man, but that is for him to decide. Some men are big enough and generous enough to feel nothing but pride in their wives' achievements. The only real wrong about it is the continual separation that must be endured if she goes on the road.

On the East coast of Florida in Palm Beach County, is the most beautiful spot on earth, and is as healthful as it is beautiful—That's Palm Beach.

Just this side is Palm City Farms, the most fertile soil in Florida, consisting of a rich dark loamy soil, underlaid with marl and clay, and in the Banner County, in producing a larger yield, per acre, by 30%, than any other County in the State, and gives larger returns, per acre than the States of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and Ohio combined. The yield is $600 per acre, in three months after planting eggplants, tomatoes or peppers, and $200 per acre from potatoes in 100 days following the above mentioned crops, on same ground. You don't have to peddle, vegetable agents come to you to buy. Ten acres yield $8000 if properly cultivated, in six months.

Health is a subject that is foremost with every human being. Palm City Farms is the Mecca! All that makes life one sweet dream is there. The conditions conducive to disease are absent—no extreme heat or cold. Balmy breezes from the West bring odors of resinous pines. Prevailing South-East winds bring the soft fresh air over the land, giving life and vigor, as your cheeks feel the gentle glow of a radiant sunshine all the year round. If you want a farm or home like that, it is yours for $50.00 per acre, $10.00 per month, no interest, no taxes, and a free town lot in Palm City, on an elevation overlooking and commanding a magnificent view of the beautiful St. Lucie river, a deep salt water stream, half a mile wide, abounding in fish of great variety. Why stay North, work like a slave and freeze half the year, when you can have perpetual Spring in a Palm City Farms home.

STRONG TICKET NAMED.

Centre County Republicans have named a good, strong ticket and united, earnest effort in its behalf will insure a signal party triumph in November.

Congressman Patton's renomination is a vindication of the wisdom of the second-term principle. He has proved himself an able and worthy representative at Washington and with his experience gained in his first term will be all the better equipped for accomplishing results for this congressional district in the next two years. Mr. Patton's opponent at the recent primaries made a good fight, but it is no reflection on him or his friends to say that for the welfare of the district as a whole it was good judgment on the part of the Republican voters not to disturb the wise policy of according a congressman a second term. The true spirit of the loyal Republican is to accept the decree of the majority and we sincerely believe that those who supported Mr. DeHaas at the primaries will render equally loyal and hearty support for Congressman Patton at the polls in November. We wish to frankly say for this newspaper that we supported Congressman Patton for renomination. Our contest ended when the count of the vote was begun. Had Mr. DeHaas won the nomination he would have had no more enthusiastic or earnest supporter than "The Republican." Once the majority has spoken we stand squarely by that decree and the nominees become our nominees.

For the Assembly the Republican nominee, Professor C. L. Gramley, is an exceptionally strong, capable man. He won his nomination in a clean, open-and above-board contest and as the nominee he is entitled to the support of each and every Republican. His chances for election are exceedingly bright and can be made a reality by hearty co-operation on the part of all Republicans. This happened to be one of those contests where neither aspirant would have taken the field had the other entered it earlier in the campaign. The very best of feeling prevailed and all are satisfied with the result. Typical of his sincerity and party spirit was the action of Professor Gramley in voluntarily notifying Philipsburg friends in advance of the primaries that if he failed to win his coat would be off and his sleeves rolled up for the winner. If there is any place in the world where this kind of spirit prevails it is in Philipsburg, the home of Professor Gramley's opponent, and we venture the prediction that the returns in November will show that Philipsburg, as in the past, is true blue.

For the Republican County Chairmanship Henry C. Quigley won a re-election and looks for the same loyal support from his recent opponents as he and his friends expected to render in the event of the election of Hard P. Harris. The latter put up a good fight and as a contestant for the chairmanship appreciates the importance of any chairman having behind him a united party. This newspaper took no hand in the chairmanship contest. As a champion of straight Republicanism we candidly state that had Mr. Harris been successful we would have rendered for him our best and most active support during the term of his chairmanship. With us the primaries settled the chairmanship just as it has settled every other place on the ticket.

The Roosevelt wave swept Centre County for the national and state delegates. They were not our choice at the primaries, but they were the choice of a majority of the Republicans of Centre County and the majority having decided we cheerfully accept that decision. The result is indicative of the popularity of the "Fighting Colonel" and we extend congratulations to the victors on the completeness of their triumph. Even when it comes to a licking one cannot but admire seeing it done up brown, and brown is hardly adequate in expressing the color handed out at the primaries. The Roosevelt boys not only went swimming but took the creek along home with them. They have cause to be proud of their two-to-one victory and our hat is off to them.

NOW GET TOGETHER.

Centre County Republicans have just emerged from several lively "shindies." The best scrappers are those who turn right side up and shake hands after the scrap is over. The majority have given the verdict and it is up to winners and losers to forget the past and work unitedly for the future. The contests are already forgotten. The merits of the cause of the opposing sides are now but a memory, and the sooner all hands get together the happier all will be and the better it will be for the Republican party in the county. Any fellow who is walking about these days with a chip on his shoulder will find it good policy to forget his troubles, for like most other things, chips and bricks come home to roost. Bricks, after all, are for building up and not tearing down. If Republicans would keep constantly before them the fact that the only persons who profit by Republican dissension are Democrats there would be fewer party differences.

The Republicans of Centre county constitute one great family. It should be a united happy family. Surely there is room under the one sheltering roof for every member of this family. The spirit of any two members standing together only when one is standing on the other's neck is the poorest kind of policy. All through life it is undeniably true that pulling hair is only a bluff at having a good time. Why encourage baldness? Baldness makes people, Republicans included, look and feel much older than their years. Baldness is no bluff. It's the real thing. Figure it out, any way you want to look at it. If taken in time it may be corrected. If neglected too long, it's hopeless. Don't allow yourself to become a political sorehead. If somebody's hair must be pulled try and make it a practice to single out the head of some Democrat. It will hurt just as much, and it won't hurt you as a Republican or be hurting your Republican party.

Let's get together. Let there be lots of hair pulling but let it be so planned and executed that all the political bald heads will be found lined up in the bald heads row in the Democratic party.

ROOSEVELT LANDSLIDE

of the House" and a veteran legislator with 39 years of service at Washington, was defeated for renomination by M. Clyde Kelly, a young member of the last Legislature. Dalzell has for years ranked as among the foremost Republicans in the United States, but in the Roosevelt landslide he, as a Taft champion, went down to defeat.

Another unlooked for defeat was that of Congressman Reuben O. Moon, of Philadelphia, who has been conspicuous in Congress because of his work in codifying the laws during the last few years. Congreseman Moon was a Taft advocate and in seeking renomination went down to defeat because of the completeness of the sweep for Roosevelt.

The few Taft national delegates elected on Saturday include John Wanamaker. Senator Penrose had planned having himself and Governor Tener elected national delegates-at-large by the State Convention. Whether this can be accomplished will hinge upon the fight for control of the convention. Flinn and Penrose have not been in political accord for years and the assumption is that if the former is able to control the State Convention he will oppose any suggestion that Senator Penrose or Governor Tener be elected as delegates-at-large. In the latter event it will still be possible for Senator Penrose and the Governor to go to the Chicago convention as substitutes, several delegates having already volunteered to extend them this honor.

1312 PERSONS DROWNED

The news came from the steamer Carpathia relayed by the White Star liner Olympic, and revealed that by the time the Carpathia, outward bound from New York and racing for the Titanic on a wireless call, reached the scene, the doomed vessel had sunk.

For the rest, the scene as the Carpathia came up was one of desolation. All that remained of the $10,000,000 floating palace, on which nearly 1,400 passengers had been voyaging luxuriuosly to this side of the Atlantic, were some bits of wreckage. The biggest ship in the world had gone down, snuffing out in her downward plunge, it appears, hundreds of human lives.

A significant line in the Cape Race dispatch was the announcement that of those saved by the Carpathia nearly all were women and children.

Minister Accepts Call.

Rev. S. S. Clark will preach in the Baptist church at Milesburg at 11 o'clock next Sunday morning, and at Eagleville at 7.30 o'clock in the evening. He recently preached a trial sermon, after which he was extended a call for this charge. He has accepted but has not decided just when he will take charge.

Correspondence.

Hublersburg.

B. W. Carner purchased four fine holstein cows from George Ohl.

The Misses Taylor, of Mackeyville, were entertained at the home of J. H. Carner last week.

William Carner has returned from McElhattan, after visiting there for a month or two with relatives.

Mrs. Martha Carner and children spent Sunday in Clintondale with the Rossmans.

On Thursday Prof. Glossner and W. H. Markle went with the 1912 class to Lock Haven to get their class picture taken.

Stanley McCormick and Ray Calathan, of Lock Haven, were visitors here last week among friends.

Sarah Wetzel, of Bellefonte, spent one day last week with Mrs. J. W. Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Yocum, of Waddle, spent Sunday among friends in town.

Mrs. Lose, of Centre Hall, spent several days last week with A. H. Spayd and family.

Miss Verna McClintick, of Mill Hall, was a pleasant visitor at James Carner's last week

Miss Nelle F. Rathmell has gone to Philadelphia and New York to visit with friends for a few weeks.

Mrs. Julia Yocum gave a dinner party on Thursday to several ladies from Salona and also a few in town.

Mrs. Josephine Rossman, of Clintondale, spent a part of last week with her aunt, Mrs. Frank Carner.

Margaret and Earle Miller, of Island, were visiting at the home of J. H. Rathmell, on Wednesday and Thursday.

Ward Markle, Benjamin Swartz, Alton Deitrich, Charles Carner and Rosalie McCormick and Estella McCormick have gone back to their respective colleges.

The banquet given in honor of the class of 1912, on Wednesday by the members of the W. T. H. S. Alumni Association, at the home of A. H. Spayd, was a decided success. About 30 of the Alumni were there to enjoy the fine refreshments served. Smith's orchestra played for them. Again we say there is no music like the Smith's orchestra!

The commencement exercises of the Walker Township High School were attended by 650 people, the largest crowd ever. The entire program was well rendered; the talk by Dr. Weber, of State College, was much enjoyed by all; music furnished by Smith's orchestra, was much appreciated. The program was as follows:

PROGRAM

Lemont.

Miss Sara Lenker is visiting in Berwick.

John Grove raised his new barn on Tuesday.

Miss Blanche Musser is working at State College.

James Williams is confined to his home with rheumatism.

The fever patients of our community are on the road to "wellville."

Miss Myra Johnsonbaugh, of State College, spent Sunday with her friend, Miss Ruth Cronemiller.

Grandmother Armstrong, Mrs. Dan Tressler and daughter, Mary, and Miss Ruth Evey are visiting in Milesburg this week.

I. J. Dreese and daughter, Helen, have returned home from Philadelphia and Atlantic City, where they were visiting several days.

Schreck Bros. have made another extension to their blacksmith shop, and are now prepared to do more and even better work than heretofore.

W. W Schreck and wife spent Monday night in Bellefonte, where they attended the lecture on "American Perils," given by Bishop William Bell, of Los Angeles, California.

Rev. G. E. Smith spent a couple days at Stormstown last week, where he visited his cousin, Prof. I. E. Fisher, who closed a very successful term of school on Thursday.

Frank Beaver and "Banty" Huings, of State College, decided to go fishing on Monday, but as there were so many along the banks of Spring Creek and as the fish did not care to bite they decided to come to Lemont and "hit up" a job. This they found and worked so hard that they were too tired to go home before some time the next morning. We believe these young men have an eye to business or perhaps on some ladies in our town.

REORGANIZERS WIN

Anti-Guffey Democrats Have Captured Control of Party in State.

Returns from Saturday's primaries indicate that the reorganization faction of Democrats have captured control of the party in the State. The reorganizers claim that they will be in command of a decisive majority of the delegates at the State convention at Harrisburg next month.

The program of the reorganizers is to re-elect George W. Guthrie, of Pittsburg, as state chairman. Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer is to be elected as Pennsylvania's representative in the National Committee.

Mt. Eagle.

Miss Ethel Bitner visited with friends in Howard a day or two ago.

Miss Anna Deitz was a shopping visitor to Bellefonte a few days ago.

Irvin Robinson was a business visitor to Bellefonte last Friday night.

Justice Leathers, who works for the Pennsy. at Tyrone, spent Sunday here.

A broken shaft resulted in a couple of days idleness last week at the handle factory.

Mr. and Mrs. Al. Strickland and children spent Sunday with Mrs. Strickland's mother in Lock Haven.

The Mt. Eagle school closed on Monday. Miss Anna Deitz closed her school on Wednesday. This ends the school term.

Mrs. J. K. Boney last week had her household goods shipped to Tyrone, where she expects to make her future home.

John Bowmaster was seen hiking up the railroad toward Curtin on Sunday. Must be some attraction there. How about it, John?

Miss Myrtle Robinson, who was living at George Leathers' and took the measles, has got well and came home on Saturday to see her parents.

Mrs. Joseph Hartsock, nee Miss Antes, who lives in Curwensville, Clearfield county, was in Mt. Eagle last Thursday night, stopping over enroute to Bellefonte to settle her mother's estate.

Mrs. Al. Robinson and children spent Sunday in the ridges with her foster-parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Courter.

The stork one night last week visited the home of William Gates and left behind a nice little daughter. Both mother and baby are getting along splendidly.

Address to Gregg Post.

By Chaplin Collins Johnston, Saturday April 13, 1912.

Comrades:—Our commander spoke of our meeting a little earlier than usual and having a social talk. We, as a Post, do claim Jesus as Captain of our salvation, and I feel it my duty as long as I am with you, to call to remembrance our great Captain who gave Himself for us, that we might have a home at His right hand in Heaven. Oh! Comrades, how soon the death messenger will come to you and to me; may God bless this Post to His glory. Listen to the Word of God. We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, and receive the things done in the body, whether good or evil. There can be no half way; he that is guilty of the least, is guilty of the whole, and Heaven and earth may pass away but His Word shall not pass away.

At midnight there was a cry "Behold the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet Him." How dark will be that hour, if we are not ready. You have often heard people claim to be good as professing Christians; that is what the foolish virgins thought, but they could not enter in to the marriage feast. Now, Jesus says the kindom of Heaven is that way; if not ready when death comes, we can never enter Heaven. Comrades, do not wait until death comes, but go now to the loving Captain and find rest unto your souls, for His yoke is easy and His burden is light. You may not like to think of death, it is not pleasant; but you must meet it sometime.

During the past two years, it has been my privilege to call on Comrades and others who were passing from time to eternity. Some of them were sad, but others bright, among the latter being three who passed from this Post: J. L. Mulhollan, P. Green, and Thomas Wilson. Their last words are found in II Cor. v: 1-8, and 1 Thes. iv:14. But how sad was the pleading of those who knew not God. If you forget every word I say, do not forget the words of Jesus, "You must be born again," or you cannot enter Heaven. O, Comrades! May you all accept Jesus and live holy lives, without which no one can see the Kingdom of God.

Takes Passmore House.

Albert Fasshauer, of Pittsburg, will take over the Passmore House at Philipsburg as soon as the license transfer is made. It is the purpose of the Passmore Estate to thoroughly remodel the building and make it in every sense of the word an up-to-date hostlery. The front corner of the building, constructed of frame, will have solid brick walls so as to be in keeping with the balance of the structure.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing the work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Miss Maude Mayes, of Lemont, is visiting her sister, Mrs. John Mokle.

Ellis Ertle who is employed at Pittsburg visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ertle, a few days this week.

Mrs. Louisa Miller, wife of the late Carpenter Miller, died on Saturday morning April 13, 1912. She was born October 20, 1830, thus making her age at the time of her death, 82 years, 6 months, and seven days. She had been ailing for the past two years and for the last year had been confined to her bed, her weakness and old age causing her death. She was a faithful member of the Disciple church. The services were held in the Disciple church at Blanchard on Monday morning and interment was made in the Disciple cemetery. The deceased is survived by the following children: Mrs. (Mary) J. C. Holter, Mrs. (Alice) N. C. Pletcher, both of Howard; Mrs. (Clara) Crispen, California, P. A.; L. W. Miller, Beech Creek; J. G. Miller, Punxsutawney; B. H. Miller, Youngstown, O.; Mrs. (Mattie) William Pletcher, Conneautville; Mrs. (Blanche) Charles Candy, Tyrone.

The Alumni Banquet to the Class of 1912 was held with great success in the high school room on Monday evening. All were royally entertained from eight to ten when the best of delicacies were served at one table at which thirty-four were seated. The supper consisted of splendid eatables of which there were many and of which every one partook. The Alumni presented each member of the Class of 1912 with a small token of rememberance which indirectly suggested their future lives. After eating and talking from ten to twelve the toasts were given. The members were then entertained until one o'clock when they departed for their homes. The room was beautifully decorated with crepe paper of the different class colors and the school colors. The napkins were decorated with pink roses which is the class flower and at each plate was laid a large pink carnation. The Alumni now has a membership of sixty-three. Those present were: '05, Emma Weber, Lovan Smith; '06, David Holter, Mr. and Mrs. Christy Schenck; '07, Emma Pletcher, Anna Holter; '08, Lulu Schenck: '09, Florence Confer, Mabel Loder, Harry DeArment, Walter Holter, Edith Weber, Madaline Cook; '10, Fred Pletcher, Harry Muffly, Horace Schenck, Harold Schenck, Mary Weirick, Charles Robb; '11, Gertrude Thomas, Helen Weber, Marion Pletcher, Nelle Confer, Elfreida Confer, Gladys Holter; '12, Fred Taylor, Eva Neff, Leotta Bouse, Paul Wagner, John Williams, Lloyd Danghenbaugh, and Homer Yearick.

The annual commencement exercises of the Howard High school were held in the Methodist church Friday evening last and the house of worship was crowded to its fullest capacity with the relatives and friends of the graduates. Each one of the graduates acquitted himself or herself in an admirable manner aad the exercises were declared to be the best since the organization of the high school. The music was furnished by the Howard orchestra and all were well pleased with the high class of music furnished by an all home talent company. The address by Dr. W. P. Eveland, president of the Dickison Seminary, was a masterly one and was filled with food for thought for the graduates and for both young and old in the large audience. The complete program follows:

Music.....Howard Orchestra
Invocation.....Rev. R. S. Taylor
Music .....Orchestra
Salutatory.....Paul B. Wagner
Music .....Orchestra
Oration—"Our Relation with the World".....John R. Williams

Benediction.....Rev. E. F. Faust
Music .....Orchestra

One of the most delightful features of the exercises was the music furnished by the orchestra, which is composed of home talent. Every member of the orchestra acquitted himself with credit and the several selections rendered were heartily applauded. The members of the orchestra are Adam Kline, first violin; William Bland, second violin; Ronald R. Welch, clarinet; David A. Holter, first cornet; Howard Schenck, second cornet; Chester Neff, horn; Philip C. Holter, bass horn; H. Walter Holter, piano; James Bathurst, traps.

Moshannon.

Dan Hahn was a Snow Shoe visitor on Tuesday.

Ray Holt has moved from Drifton to the Gleason farm here.

Edward Gephart and son, Lester, passed through here on Monday.

Miss Holt and Miss Walker were shoppers in Snow Shoe one day last week.

Edgar Valamont has moved from the Robb house, on the Moshannon, into the F. Holt house on Main Street.

We had some fine weather out this way, but finally along came a hard rain and soon the roads were made quite muddy again.

Mrs. Sophia Yondas has returned home after an absence of about four months at Unionville where she had been on the sick list at the home of her brother. She has improved somewhat and thanks the people for their kindness and help and also the good wishes they extended when she returned home.

Liggitts grape juice sold only at Green's fountain. 10¢ a glass. It is fine.

Pine Grove Mills.

W. K. Corl is housed up with a kink in his back.

Walter Gates, of Avis, spent Sunday at his parental home.

Howard Barr, of Gatesburg, was in town Sunday afternoon.

The late showers very much revived the grass and grain fields.

Miss Maggie Markel, of Boalsburg, visited friends in this place.

Miss Neese, of Rock View, visited her aunt Annie Miller here last week.

J. Homer Decker came up from Bellefonte to vote at the primary election.

W. D. Port and wife attended the Mrs. Stiver funeral at Centre Line on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shuey, of Houserville, spent Sunday at the William Glenn home.

J. Clayton Corl was to the Musser sale on Saturday but was an unsuccessful bidder.

Ed. Gummo had the misfortune to lose a good horse on Saturday. It died suddenly.

John H. Weiland, of Boalsburg, was here on Monday looking after his spring trade for new buggies.

W. W. Wait, one of Halfmoon's progressive farmers, transacted business here last Saturday.

Butcher Herman, of Pleasant Gap, was here on Monday and bought 25 head of cattle for his block.

Ed. Houser has been housed up the past month with sciatica and is just now able to hobble about.

Our road supervisors have invested in the new stone crusher and now for better roads even if more taxes.

A firm of our up-to-date farmers on the Branch are dickering for a new stone crusher, but thus far are not meeting with much success.

Only one-half the vote was out on Saturday but the ward politicians had their knives out of their boots and were trimming up old scores.

Ed. Gummo is receiving congratulations on the arrival of a new little daughter. It is the first born and the young parents are correspondingly happy.

John C. Homan was in Bellefonte on Saturday and was so interested in the bargains at the Musser sale that he missed the train. He hiked it home but missed the primary election.

A petition is being circulated protesting against any change on what has already been surveyed by the engineering corps and selected and known as Route 56 in the proposed State road.

Miss Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Glenn, was taken to the Bellefonte hospital on Monday to be treated for appendicitis. Dr. Locke and Dr. Woods made the examination and advised her removal to the hospital.

Ed. Decker was here for the primary election on Saturday. Ed's. a good Republican. Tommy Glenn, one of the genial clerks in Joseph's store at Bellefonte, spent Sunday at his parental home just west of town.

After a two months visit with her daughter, Nellie Fenstermacher in Kansas City, Mrs. Margaret Lytle returned home last Thursday. She was perfectly delighted with her stay and also with the journey.

Unionville

We are glad to see our old friend, Dr. Constance Cambridge, on the streets again.

Miss Hannah Thompson expects to leave on Saturday for a ten days visit to Philadelphia.

Our school principal, Prof. Jacob C. Fox, has decided not to hold a summer school at this place.

Our township gave the Taft delegates five votes and the borough gave them three. Can anybody guess where the rest went? Bet Teddy can.

One of the largest surprise parties of the season was that on Tuesday night when eighty-four invited guests arrived at the home of John F. Holt. The function was in honor of their son, Foster's, twenty-first birthday anniversary. All present had a most delightful time.

We are sorry to note that Theodore Harper, Jr., the 5-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harper, fell and fractured an arm while playing a few days ago. The young fellow had suffered from rheumatism all winter and with the warm weather he was just beginning to get along very nicely. It is pretty hard luck for him, but he is made of the right material and will get there.

The following officers were installed in Lumen Lodge, I. O. O. F., on Saturday night by Dr. W. U. Irwin, assistant district grand master:

Hughes Barton, N. G.
John F. Holt, V. G.
Edward Hall, Secretary.
W. U. Irwin, Treasurer.
James M. Stere, R. S. to N. G.

Miss Lizzie Hand has left for State College, where she has secured employment.

For Rent—A good house and lot, with all out buildings. Apply to W. G. Tallhelm, J. P.

There will be services in the U. B. church Sunday morning at 10.30. All are welcome.

The primary election was well attended on Saturday and everything went off very orderly.

Mrs. Meese of Warriorsmark, was called to the bed-side of her son, David, who is very sick at this time.

Martin Spotts has moved his family to Beech Creek, where he has secured a good job in the brick-yard.

I. G. Gray has purchased the general store of E. E. Beals and opened up for business on Monday morning.

G. W. Bullock, W. G. Tallhelm, John F. Tallhelm and M. C. Miller were up to Altoona on Wednesday to hear Teddy's speech.

J. C. Hoover, who has been suffering for the last week with a severe cold, is much improved at this writing.

Charles Boyer has bought a large tract of timber near Locust Mills and will begin to operate on it at once.

Rolland Richards, of Jersey Shore, spent Sunday visiting friends in town. Mr. Richards is in the coal business in that town and we are very glad to say is doing nicely.

Mrs. W. U. Irvin, of Unionville, and Mrs. J. H. Turner and son, Thomas, of this place, journeyed this week to Cherry Tree, to spend a week with Mrs. Turner's brother, Edward P. Irvin.

There were two small freight wrecks just west of town, Saturday. One occurred about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, delaying No. 55 nearly 2 hours. The other one was due to a flue in the engine blowing out, causing a delay to express train No. 54, of about 2 hours and 30 minutes.

Might Blame it on Teddy.

Because nature has predicted it to him, E. L. Rohrbaugh, of Clarksburg, W. Va., believes the United States will suffer a bloody revolution next year. Mr. Rohrbaugh raises poultry. He discovered last Monday that one of his hens had laid three eggs, one of which bore the raised letters and figures "War" and "1913," heavily embossed and plainly readable. The egg was large and white except the raised letters and figures, which were brown. Mr. Rohrbaugh has placed the remarkable egg on exhibition at the office of the Grasselli Chemical Company's plant, where it is attracting much attention.

Robert E. Wright Dead.

Robert E. Wright, a leader of the Lehigh county bar and one of the most prominent Democrats in Pennsylvania, died at his home in Allentown on Monday, aged 65 years. He had been confined to his home with locomotor ataxia since July 4, 1907.

Up Saltpeter Creek

A Story of Ranch Life

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The Chinese cook had spilled hot bean soup on Harry Barry's immaculate white shirt front, and the scared Celestial had escaped from the room under a fusilade of pistol shots that all found lodgment in the oak beamed ceiling.

"You ought not to put on that biled shirt till after supper," admonished the Crane as the wrathful Harry wiped the soggy mess from his bosom. "It's taking a risk wearing anything decent at this table nowadays."

"And why?" exploded Harry, mindful of the fact that this was his only clean white shirt and his call upon the pretty Widow Clancy must lack that sartorial compliment.

"The chink's in love," was the Crane's reply.

"In love?"

"Who with?"

"Didn't know there was a Chinese girl within a thousand miles of the Lone Bull."

"Can't he find any other way of expressing his love than by acting like a blamed idiot?"

Of course this last remark came from Harry Barry, who was consuming what remained of the soup in his plate.

"They generally do—only it takes different forms," observed Gabriel mildly.

A chuckle ran around the table. Under cover of its good nature Wah Sung pushed open the swinging door, peered fearfully around the edge and sidled in with a great dish of steaming hot potatoes.

Perhaps he was nervous, it might be that he was in love. At any rate, when his mild brown orb met the steely glare of Harry Barry's usually amiable eyes he set the dish of potatoes upon the table with such frantic haste that the largest and hottest rolled from the pyramid and landed upon Mr. Barry's hand.

Wah Sung emitted a desolate wail as Harry Barry leaped from his chair and caught him by the neckband of his cotton blouse and shook him vigorously.

"Suffering cats! What's the matter with you?" yelled Mr. Barry excitedly. "Can't you throw down a dish of potatoes without stampedin' 'em all over the table?"

"Me solly—velly solly," moaned Wah Sung.

"That helps a lot," observed Harry bitterly.

"Me sick in the head—velly sick in the head; me do' know what to do," added Wah Sung pitifully.

The cattleman's quick sympathy was to the fore at once. "What's the matter, boy? Have you told the boss that you're sick?"

"No, no; me no tell anybody. Me velly sick here." Wah sung placed both yellow hands over his heart. "It go what you call lickerty splitty—lickerty splitty all time."

"It's your heart, boy, not your head. You want to see doctor, eh?"

Wah Sung writhed bashfully under the gaze of seven pairs of eyes. "No—no see doctor," he mumbled, edging toward the door. "Me allee light velly soon. Me go for walk. Excuse, I get rest supper."

"Going for a walk, eh?" questioned Gabriel sharply. "You think a walk up Saltpeter creek do you good, Wah Sung?"

The Chinaman shivered as with ague, and his countenance turned from yellow to gray. His lips parted in an attempted smile as he shook his head. "Oh, no, no, me no never walk up Salpeder creak! Me walk velly diffiunt way!"

"Humph! Let him go, Harry," was Gabriel's advice. When the Chinaman's slippers were once more slapping around the kitchen floor Harry Barry resumed his seat and joined the broad grin that went around the table.

"What is it—love?" he inquired.

"You oughter know, being a sort of judge of symptoms," commented Jim Lewis dryly.

"What about yourself?" retorted Harry Barry. "You oughter know—been married three months, haven't you?"

"Stop your wranglin', boys," interpolated the Crane, unjointing his lean form and taking advantage of Wah Sung's absence from the room to express his opinion. "Listen to me. I've seen the chink going up the creek every afternoon after dinner.

"What is there up Saltpeter creek?" asked Jim Lewis, lighting a cigarette.

"Nothing but the springs that I know of."

"Anybody ever been beyond the springs?"

It seemed that none of them had ever followed the rocky trail beyond the springs that gave name to the creek.

"Somebody told me that there used to be a prospectors' hut up there in the thicket. I've never been there, though, and couldn't say."

"If Wah Sung's in love why don't he marry his girl and live happily ever after?" commented Harry impatiently.

"Afraid of the boss probably. You know Chinese families are not very popular hereabouts."

"Plenty of room on the ranch. There's that little cabin down in the three mile pasture. It's not far from the bunkhouse, and Wah Sung could cook just the same and not act so confoundedly idiotic over it."

"You're appointed a committee of one to see Wah Sung and straighten the matter out," observed Gabriel as he followed the rest of the cattlemen out of doors, and, although Harry Barry made no assent, he was very thoughtful while he went upstairs to his room and removed the soup laden shirt and put on a gray flannel one, which after all was much more becoming to him than the glossy white one.

On his way out he stopped in the kitchen where Wah Sung was frantically washing dishes.

"You married, Wah Sung?" he asked sharply.

The Chinaman jumped nervously at the question and shook his head in such rapid negatives that his cue lashed back and forth like the tail of an angry cat.

"Mallied? Me? Oh, no, no, no, no! Me no like gals—me not mallied, oh, no!"

"You got a girl?"

"Oh, no, no, no!"

"Why not? You think boss not like you have a girl?"

"Oh—he not like Chinese gal. Me no have gal till me go back to Canton some day."

"I don't think he'd care if you wanted to get married, Wah Sung. There's a nice little house down in the pasture, and you could come up and cook every day. Why don't you tell the boss?"

"Me no like gals—me no want get mallied," persisted Wah Sung.

As he rode over the well worn trail that led to the Widow Clancy's ranch, Harry Barry was firmly convinced that the Chinaman had been lying to him. It was a bright moonlight night, and he resolved to ask Mrs. Clancy to ride with him up Saltpeter creek and investigate what lay beyond. The romance involved might lure her into the evening ride.

It did. She was warmly interested in the story of the despairing Chinaman, and the suspected love affair that might be at the bottom of his erratic actions.

"How long has he acted that way, Harry?" she asked, as they rode side by side up the trail, her hand in that of her sweetheart's.

"About three months. Ever since he came back from a month's leave of absence. He went to San Francisco, and he's acted like a crazy flea ever since," and he told her the story of the bean soup, and the conversation that followed.

"Poor fellow," sighed Mrs. Clancy, and Harry Barry leaned over and kissed her lips.

When they reached the springs they could see that the trail entered a thicket of thorns, but Harry investigated and found that the way had been cunningly cleared of thorns, so that a person might pass through. They left their horses at the springs, and Harry, leading the way, they pushed through the thicket to emerge on the other side into an open sandy space dropping down the hillside that formed one boundary of Lone Bull ranch.

A faint light pricking through the gloom of another thicket on the hillside lured them down until they stood before a small cabin thatched with branches and almost concealed from the view of the casual passerby.

"There is a window. You look, dear," said Harry Barry, and as his sweetheart hesitated he added: "You know it's to help 'em along if it's necessary."

Then Mrs. Clancy looked through a corner of the pane from which the calico inner curtain had swung back, revealing the interior of the one roomed cabin. She looked and looked, finally reaching out and drawing Harry toward her until their faces touched.

They looked upon a little home. It might have been picked up out of any city in China and dropped there on this lonely Montana hillside. What marvelous force had enabled the small Chinaman to secretly bring from great distances all the little household gods that meant home to him? Love, of course.

The walls were hung with gayly printed cottons, and in one corner where a small altar had been erected for his ancestral tablets there was a square of rich silk embroidery. Little bronze vessels stood on the altar, and on a bracket there was an image of a favorite household god, with an offering of incense smoking before it. A roll of quilts was on the built in bed or bunk in one corner, matting covered the rough floor, a couple of Chinese chairs were there and a low table. There was a row of quaint oriental porcelain dishes on a shelf and odd cooking utensils of copper and a brand new American cook stove of the smallest dimensions.

That was not all. There in one of the chairs sat the daintiest little Chinese woman you ever saw. In her arms she held a yellow morsel of babyhood, who was staring up at Wah Sung with beady black slanting eyes and sucking its thumb contentedly.

Last of all there was Wah Sung—not the craven, panic stricken cook of the Lone Bull ranch, but a Chinaman invested with the dignity of the head of a household. He was smiling down at the baby, with nothing but love in his mild brown eyes.

"Poor devil!" whispered Harry Barry crossly, because his own eyes were full of tears and his sweetheart was wiping the tears from her pretty blue eyes.

"Poor?" challenged Mrs. Clancy, drawing him back to the springs and their waiting horses. "Man alive, Wah Sung is rich! Let us go straight to Boss Clintock and tell him that Wah Sung is married and that he must give them the cabin in the pasture."

"Of course he'll do it. But if he shouldn't?" teased Harry.

"I'll hire Wah Sung myself and build a Chinese temple for them to live in and dedicate it to the god of love," declared the Widow Clancy.

Coloring a Meerschaum.

"The secret of coloring a meerschaum pipe," said a man who makes them, "is in not allowing the bowl to get too hot. All meerschaum pipes are boiled in wax, which penetrates the clay—for that's all meerschaum is—and which carries the tobacco oil to all parts of the surface, preventing its exuding. The nature of heat is to drive any liquid away, and if the pipe is smoked too fast the heat generated will drive the wax to the extremes. That is why most meerschaums show color first in those places. Just as soon as the wax is all driven out there is an end to the hope of coloring the pipe unless it is reboiled.

"To prevent this burning smoke slowly, with long, steady puffs. If the bowl gets hot lay the pipe aside at once. Also, let the pipe be thoroughly cold before refilling it after smoking. Nothing will ruin your pipe sooner than keeping it steadily in use."—New York Times.

Wept as He Ate.

General Winfield Scott was a notable figure in the Washington society of sixty years ago described by Mrs. Marion Gouverneur in her volume of reminiscences, "As I Remember." The general was something of an epicure. Mrs. Gouverneur recalls seeing him sit down with great satisfaction to a meal consisting principally of jowl. He did the family marketing personally and was discriminating in the selection of food. Terrapin, which he insisted upon pronouncing tarrapin, was his favorite dish, and he would order oysters by the barrel from Norfolk. On one occasion he attended a banquet where all the states of the Union were represented by a dish in some way characteristic of each commonwealth. Pennsylvania was represented by a bowl of sauerkraut, and in speaking of the fact the next morning the general remarked, "I partook of it with tears in my eyes."

Sesquipedalian Words.

Mark Twain is not the only person to find amusement in the German language. A writer in the Paris Siecle accounts for the deliberation with which the negotiations over the Moroccan difficulty were carried on.

"Our interlocutors cannot end their explanations," he says. "With the best will in the world they cannot pronounce rapidly such words as this: 'Antialkoholcongressmitgliederverzeichnissesdruckkostenvoranschlagprufungscommissionsversammlungeinladungskarten.' This little word means 'Invitation cards for the meeting of the commission for verifying the accounts of the expenses of printing the list of members of the anti-alcoholic congress.'"

The effect of the German tongue is thus seen to be the exact opposite of what it might be supposed to be. It is a deterrent to war instead of a provocation.

"I wish you would tell me what is the matter with my watch," said the girl.

It was her first watch, a birthday present, and as the jeweler took it and deftly wound the stem between the thumb and index finger of his right hand she watched him closely as if it were an operation involving some mysterious incantation.

"It seems to be all right," said the jeweler, handing it back to her. "You ought to keep it wound up though."

"It looks very simple when you do it," replied the girl, "but I could wind it all day and it wouldn't go for me."

And then the jeweler saw where the difficulty was. "No wonder," he said, laughing. "I see you are left handed, and instead of winding it up you've been turning the stem the wrong way."—New York Press.

Masks and Faces.

Masks are of very ancient origin. In a tomb 3,000 years old at Mycenae Dr. Schliemann found two bodies with faces covered by masks of gold. One of the masks represented the head of a lion. Among ancient Greeks the lion mask was a sign of distinction. With the Peruvians of old it was a mark of royal lineage. In a grave of considerable antiquity in Peru a silver mask was found on the head of a mummy. The mummy of a prince who lived in the reign of Rameses II., discovered in a small vault at Memphis, in Egypt, had a mask of gold leaf over the face.

A BIRD OF LIGHT.

The Arctic Tern Shuns the Night by Flights From Pole to Pole.

It used to be thought that the golden plover bore off the palm for length of flight between summer and winter homes, but an article in the National Geographic Magazine awards that distinction to the arctic tern. This bird breeds as far north as it can find anything stable on which to construct its nest. It has been found within seven and a half degrees of the pole itself. And that nest was found surrounded by a wall of newly fallen snow, which the mother bird had carefully scooped out from round her chick.

The tern arrives in the far north about June 15 and leaves again for the south toward the last of August, when the young are able to fly strongly. Two or three months later the birds are to be found skirting the edge of the antarctic continent, 11,000 miles away.

What their track is over that vast space no one yet knows. A few individuals are occasionally seen along the New England or Long Island coast in the fall, but the flocks of thousands and thousands of these gregarious birds which alternate from pole to pole have never been met by any trained observer competent to learn their preferred path and their time schedule. They must travel at least 150 miles each day—apart from their flights in search or in pursuit of food—to carry them within ten or twelve weeks from one end of the world to the other.

The arctic terns enjoy more hours of sunlight than any other creatures on the globe. The sun never sets during their stay at their northern nesting grounds, and during their stay in the south they have two months of continuous sunlight and practical daylight for two months more. The birds have twenty-four hours of daylight for between six and eight months of the year.

FORESAW HER DOOM.

Warnings of Her Tragic Fate That Came to Empress Elizabeth.

In "My Royal Clients" M. Paoli, the famous French detective, writing of the unfortunate Empress Elizabeth of Austria, who was so foully murdered in Geneva in 1898, says that two strange incidents incline one to the belief that the empress received a presentiment of her tragic end.

"On the eve of her departure for Geneva she asked Mr. Barker to read her a few chapters of a book by Marion Crawford, entitled 'Corleone,' in which the author describes the detestable customs of the Sicilian Mafia. While the empress was listening to the harrowing story a raven, attracted by the scent of some fruit which she was eating, came and circled round her. Greatly impressed, she tried to drive it off, but in vain, for it constantly returned, filling the echoes with its mournful croakings. Then she rapidly walked away, for she knew that ravens are harbingers of death when their ill omened wings persist in flapping round a living person.

"Again, a lady in waiting told me that on the morning of that day she went into the empress' room, as usual, to ask how she had slept and found her imperial mistress looking pale and sad.

"'I have had a strange experience,' said Elizabeth. 'I was awakened in the middle of the night by the bright moonbeams which filled my room, for the servants had forgotten to draw the blinds. I could see the moon from my bed, and it seemed to have the face of a woman weeping. I don't know if it is a presentiment, but I have an idea I shall meet with misfortune.'"

And it was a few hours later that Luccheni killed her with a three cornered file clumsily fitted to a wooden handle.

Where the Cold Is Warm.

I have seen sunshine, oh, sunshine as splendid as yours, among my beloved mountains in Switzerland! You know what cold is and what warmth is, but do you know what warm cold is?

Did you ever live a whole winter through glowing because the frost was so warm? Do you know the wonders of blue ice, pink snow and 40 degrees of frost, while the men skate in panamas and the girls with open parasols?

And the splendor of colors in the morning sky; everything in the solar spectrum—red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, violet; at each moment a new combination. And then the sun is up, and the intoxication of it all makes you wonder if you ever lived before.—Dr. Aked in Christian Herald.

A Veteran of the Light Brigade

A War Story

By F. A. MITCHEL

During the war between the states an Englishman named Larkins, who had been a sergeant in the British army, came over to America to seek service with the Federal army. If he failed he would try the Confederacy. A soldier of fortune, he had no preferences, though in England the people were overwhelmingly in favor of the south.

Larkins had papers to prove his British citizenship, which enabled him to sojourn either in the north or in the south, as he pleased. He came over in a blockade runner to Charleston, S. C., and, going to Richmond, Va., made application for a commission. He was offered one, but by this time exhaustion had begun to show itself in the Confederacy, especially in a financial way, and Larkins was not pleased with the want of prospect of emolument in its service. So he concluded to try for a commission in the Federal army.

Having declined the southern offer, he asked for a pass to go through the lines to Washington, telling the authorities in Richmond that he had been called home to England. It was furnished him, and he left for the Army of Northern Virginia, at that time encamped between the two capitals, intending, after having been passed through the lines, to work his way northward. The route he desired to take lay through Fredericksburg, and encamped upon the road was a division commanded by a general whom I will call Beaumont. When Larkins presented his pass to the officer, telling him at the same time that he was a British subject, he was treated with consideration for the reason that the southerners were constantly hoping that the British government would interfere in their behalf, and they were always ready to show attention to such English persons as came among them.

General Beaumont showed great interest in John Larkins, regretting that his recall to England had deprived the south of his services. The general told him that if he would remain and accept a commission he would appoint him to a position on his staff. The Englishman was tempted; but, knowing that he must take his pay in depreciated Confederate currency, he adhered to his resolution, assuring the general that his recall was imperative.

A number of officers were introduced to Larkins, who looked upon him with considerable interest. This he attributed to the fact that he had told the general that he had fought in the Crimean war and took part in the celebrated charge of the Light brigade, of which he gave a vivid description. Whatever the cause, the ex-British soldier was much pleased with his treatment, and when he was urged not to hurry away he felt disposed to linger in his pleasant surroundings. Every one had heard of the charge that had thrilled the world and had been commemorated by the British poet laureate Alfred Tennyson, so that one who had taken part in it was especially interesting to soldiers.

Larkins had reached General Beaumont's headquarters in time for luncheon and was invited by the general to lunch with him and his staff. During the afternoon Beaumont invited the Englishman to ride with him on a tour of inspection of his division, and in the evening the chief of staff, Captain Carter, asked the visitor if he would not like to call upon a southern family living in the vicinity. Larkins was not what would be considered in England a gentleman and demurred at the invitation, but the general urged him to make the acquaintance of at least one household of southern ladies while in America, and he consented.

Larkins that evening met Caroline Fletcher, a captivating southern girl, who had only to smile upon him to make him fancy that she had been smitten with him. When he told her that he was simply passing through the lines and would go north the next day she pouted and insisted on a promise that he would call upon her the next evening. Gallantry led Larkins to promise, and he left her not quite knowing whether he was standing on his heels or his head.

The next day he was shown more attentions by the officers and in the evening called on Miss Fletcher. She received him on a veranda rich with the perfume of flowers. She was carefully attired and looked bewitching. She flirted with Larkins for awhile, then began to ask him on which side of the American conflict his sympathies were enlisted. He assured her that he had no preference, whereupon she coquettishly asked him if he would do her a service. Having declared that he would be glad to accommodate her, she told him that she belonged to a Union family and was bound up in the success of the Union arms. She confided to him that she was sending information to Washington and ended by asking him if he would carry a written communication for her to President Lincoln.

Larkins knew well that if caught by the Confederates with such information on his person his British citizenship would not save him from the gallows. He declined to be the bearer of the message. The lady looked much disappointed, but forebore to press the matter and begged that he would not betray her. Larkins promised, and that ended the episode.

The next day the Britisher said he would take his departure. He was informed that he must be sent through the lines with a flag of truce, and the situation was not just then fitted for the dispatching of such a flag. The enemy was restless, and there might be fighting at any moment. So Larkins was obliged to content himself at headquarters, which were not so agreeable as before the attentions that had been showered on him were discontinued—that is to say, he did not seem to excite the same interest as formerly.

During that day one of the officers brought up to him a citizen whom he introduced, expatiating on the ex-sergeant's experience in the Crimea. The man looked at him closely, made some commonplace remarks and withdrew. From that time Larkins began to realize that he was under surveillance. He had been furnished with a tent, which he occupied alone, and during the night was awakened by men talking outside. Curious to know what was going on, he got off his cot and looked out. Several privates were sitting on the ground close by his tent, smoking. He was surely under guard. What could it mean?

He lay awake the greater part of the night wondering what object the general could possibly have in treating him, a British subject, as a guest, but really depriving him of his liberty.

The next morning when he awoke the men had gone. An officer came in and told him that a breakfast would be sent in to him. During the day he noticed that this same officer never lost sight of him. To kill time he thought he would go and call on Miss Fletcher.

"Where are you going?" asked his shadower.

"I'm going to pay a visit at the Fletchers'. I expect to be going as soon as the general will send me through, and I think I'll say goodby to them."

"You won't find the Fletchers at home today."

This was said in a half commanding tone, as if meaning, "Stay where you are." Larkins said nothing, but turned and retraced his steps.

He was sitting in a camp chair that afternoon near General Beaumont's tent when an officer rode up, threw himself from his horse and went in to see the general. There being nothing but canvas to intercept the sound, Larkins could hear a part of what was said. After some talk that he could not make out:

"He's the man," the inferior officer said.

"Are you sure?" asked the general.

"Yes, general; the same fellow, playing a different game."

"When will he be here?"

"Within an hour.'

"Very well. We'll be ready for him."

This was Greek to Larkins, but the treatment he had received and the fact of his being under surveillance, taken with the words "playing the same game," made him uneasy. As soon as the officer had left the general Larkins went into his tent and said:

"See here, general, I wish to go through the lines at once. If I am purposely detained I desire to know the cause."

"I'll send you through tomorrow morning," said the general, speaking in a tone to indicate that he meant to do what he said.

"Am I detained in your camp?"

"No. Go where you like."

"Very well. I'll wait till tomorrow. If I am detained longer I shall telegraph the British consul at Richmond to come out here at once."

"You'll not be detained—that is, unless a battle opens."

The next morning at daylight Larkins was awakened by General Beaumont's orderly, who said that the general would like to see him in his tent. Still uneasy, he arose and went to the general. An officer was there waiting.

"This is Major Clayton, Mr. Larkins. If you will go with him he will show you something to explain our reception and treatment of you since you have been with us. On your return I will be pleased to have you breakfast with me, and a flag of truce is ordered for 10 o'clock to escort you through the lines."

Larkins went with Major Clayton, walking down the road till they came to a clearing. A file of soldiers were standing, resting on their arms. Seeing the major approach, an officer went to a tent surrounded by a guard, led forth a man pale as death in citizen's dress and placed him before the soldiers.

He looked enough like Larkins to be his brother.

The Britisher knew at once that a spy was to be executed. Turning, he walked back to the general's headquarters.

"Permit me to offer my apologies," said the latter. "The man you saw taken out for execution is a northern man who was spying on us under cover of forged papers of British citizenship. This coincidence and the fact that he resembles you caused us to believe we had got one we have been looking for. Our catching him is a blessing to you, for we had about made up our minds to try you by drumhead court martial and shoot you."

Larkins now saw through all that had occurred. The most mortifying circumstance was his realization that the southern beauty had been set upon him to endeavor to tempt him to betray himself as a spy if he really was one. Satisfied with his experience, he returned to England without service in either the Federal or Confederate army.

THE "EROICA" SYMPHONY.

Beethoven's Passion When Napoleon Became Emperor.

Even when political capital was not to be made of it, the favor of kings and courtiers was, prior to the middle of the nineteenth century, sought by the artists in various fields of activity, who were generally dependent for their position upon those high in political life, and even the most uncompromising among them found it expedient to play polite politics in the interest of their art by dedicating the choicest of their works to noble patrons.

The most notable example of a masterwork with a political origin is Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony. General Bernadotte during his residence in Vienna in 1798 as ambassador from the French nation suggested to Beethoven the composition of a symphony in honor of Napoleon. At that time Napoleon was looked upon as the champion of freedom, the savior of his country, the embodiment of republican ideals, with which Beethoven was in thorough sympathy, and he willingly accepted the proposal. Before the symphony was published Napoleon became emperor, and when the news reached Vienna Beethoven was violently angered. 'After all, then, he is nothing but an ordinary mortal! He will trample all the rights of men under foot to indulge his ambition and become a greater tyrant than any one!"

With these words he seized the music, tore the title page in half and threw it on the ground. He never again referred to the connection between his work and Napoleon until news of the latter's death reached him. Then he said, "I have already composed the proper music for that catastrophe," meaning, of course, the funeral march. But the whole symphony, with its essentially revolutionary character, is a musical portrait of Napoleon as Beethoven idealized him. —Bookman.

IRON TONIC FOR TREES.

Plant Nails Among the Roots and a Vigorous Growth Results.

A dozen large nails planted among the roots of a tree assure the tree of health, because the vegetable saps cause the oxidation of the iron and the sap carries ferruginous salts through all the living cells and circulation vessels.

Not many years ago one of the sights of a certain French cemetery was a tree, half green, half rust colored, luxuriantly leaved upon both sides and in flourishing condition. When the tree died and preparations were made for an examination of its roots it was almost impossible to exhume it. When all the ground around it was loosened and the roots were exposed it was found that the tree when a sapling had clasped its young roots around the baste of an iron balustrade encircling a tomb. The roots of the tree had run in and out between the iron bars of the fence. Exactly half of the tree had come in contact with the iron, and that half put forth a growth luxuriantly leaved in rusty brown. The half that had not touched the iron developed a growth of normal coloring. The tree as a whole was a fine specimen of healthy vegetable growth, but the side impregnated by iron far exceeded the green side in its output of vigorous leafage.

Sulphate of iron is of little value when sprinkled on the leaves of a sick tree, but powdered iron has a marvelous effect when introduced into the tissues by means of holes bored in the trunk. The holes must be filled with the powder and then corked with wooden plugs and well puttied over and around the plugs, so that none of the tonic can escape. To do its work the iron must be carried through the tree in the circulation of the sap.—Harper's.

The Crew of Columbus.

The list of the officers and sailors in the first voyage of Columbus was almost cosmopolitan in its character. Among them there was a Jew, Luis de Torres; an Irishman from Galway, Ireland, William Harris; an Englishman, Arthur Laws; Italians, Portuguese, Spaniards and several other nationalities, though, of course, the Spaniards were largely in the majority. It is maintained by some authorities, with considerable plausibility, too, that there was a Scotchman in the list and that after Columbus himself he was the first man to tread the soil of the new world.—Exchange.

Old Laws of Scotland.

On the statute book of Scotland is still an act passed in 1825 ordering that "na man play futeball," because it is "esteemed to be unprofitable sport for the common gude of the realme and defense thereof." There is also a statute against alien immigration, passed in 1426, and authorizing "all his majesty's subjects" to "take, apprehend, imprison and execute to death the said Egiptians (gypsies), either men or women."

His Experience.

"They say Cashit, who has become the social magnate of the town, was once an elevator boy."

"Ah, that accounts for it."

"Accounts for what?"

"His faculty for taking some people up and for taking others down."—Chicago News.

A Picture Hint.

Use two pieces of glass and two pictures when passepartouting. Fasten the hangers to the cardboard between the two pictures. When tired of one picture turn its face to the wall and enjoy the other.

QUEER MARINE ANIMAL.

The "Portuguese Man-of-war" Is a Veritable Fairy Ship.

The "Portuguese man-of-war" is held to be one of the most beautiful of all the so called pelagic animals and is a veritable fairy ship, with sail that can be elevated or lowered, that can throw out a dredge or haul it in—in short, one of the most attractive of all marine animals and at the same time one of the most dangerous.

This little animal has been called a "poem in satin," yet it conceals under its attractive exterior an armament that is capable of overpowering a foe of a thousand times its size. In fact, the physalia stands in the same relation to many other marine animals of its size as a well fitted torpedo submarine boat would to an old line of battle ship of the Constitution class.

If one but touch the purple tentacles a realizing sense of this power is at once experienced. The finger stings as if needles had been thrust into it, and when the tentacles are placed upon a spot where the flesh is sensitive the pain can only be compared to that produced by melted lead or boiling oil.

One scientist nearly lost his life in an engagement with the little craft. The man had a habit of swimming on his side, an unfortunate habit in this case, inasmuch as his view to the right was obstructed when one day he swam over the tentacles of a large "man-of-war." He was in about seven feet of water, and the contact immediately gave the swimmer such a shock that he almost lost the power of motion and sank.

As he struck bottom with his feet he pushed up and partially recovered himself—sufficiently at least to call for help. Some laborers at work near by sprang into the water and carried him ashore. By that time he could breathe only with extreme difficulty, this being the most serious symptom. The purple mass was scraped from the skin with knives and razors, but it seemed to have sunk into the flesh. For six or seven months afterward he could very readily have passed for a tattooed man, the entire middle and lower portion of his body being covered with the most fanciful tracings.—Harper's.

WHITE WINGED PEACE.

A Great Scheme For Averting Wars In the Future.

Writing on the difficulties of putting an end to war, F. P. Dunne says in the Metropolitan:

It is an interesting theory that it is not tough minded old statesmen who drive tender youth to war. It is youth itself which tugs on the leash and pulls the unwilling statesmen. We can well believe that this is so. The courage of youth is pure fearlessness. The young are not afraid of death. They regard is as something that cannot possibly happen to them. They apprehend it intellectually, but they do not feel it; hence we propose to our fellow peace commissioners this plan for averting wars in future.

In nearly every country there is a maximum of age limit for enlistment or conscription. It is in the neighborhood of forty years. Now, why, in the interests of peace, would it not be well to make a minimum age limit instead? Suppose we say that on the first call only men over sixty could be drafted, and on the second only men over fifty, and on the third only men over forty, and no man under forty could be permitted to fight.

How long then would wars continue? The first call would be answered by a storm of doctor's certificates, the second by the prompt suspension of all banks, and on the third call a body of resolute patriots who had long been conscious that death regarded them wistfully would proceed at once to the palace or White House or ministry of foreign affairs and lynch the king, president or minister who proposed this outrage on civilization.

Napoleon on Shakespeare.

Napoleon had a very poor opinion of Shakespeare's plays. According to Thibaudeau, in his "Bonaparte and Consulate," Napoleon said one day: "Shakespeare was forgotten even by the English for 200 years until Voltaire took it into his head to write him up to please his English friends, and ever since people have gone about repeating that Shakespeare was the greatest author that ever lived. I have read him, and there is nothing in him that approaches Corneille or Racine. His plays are not worth reading."

Too Late!

"Do you know who her grandfather was? Have you ascertained anything in regard to her pedigree? Those are things you ought to know about the woman you are to make your wife."

"Oh, hang her grandfather!"

"My boy, that's just what they did do."—Youth's Companion.

He Didn't Understand.

"Then you don't want no cranberries?"

"No; I've changed my mind. I see your cat is asleep in those cranberries."

"That's all right, mum; I don't mind waking the cat up."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HOME ENDORSEMENT.

Hundreds of Bellefonte Citizens Can Tell You all About it.

Home endorsement, the public expression of Bellefonte people should be evidence beyond dispute for every Bellefonte reader. Surely the experience of friends neighbors cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of straugers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

James H. Rine, 239 W. High Street Bellefonte, Pa. says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly a wonderful kidney remedy. Ten yeays ago I first used them and at that time I told in a public statement of the benefit I had received. That statement still holds good. I have often urged my friends to try Doan's Kidney Pills and in every case where my advice has been followed, relief has been received from kidney trouble. Whenever I hear anyone complaining of kidney disorders, I advise a trial of Doan's Kidney Pills knowing that they will have a good effect."

Rose Scale.

Now is the time to examine the rose bushes for that most serious pest, the Rose scale, said Prof. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist of Pennsylvania, in his office at Harrisburg recently. He further said that this pest could be easily detected, because of its white ashy appearance, being whiter and more conspicuous than San Jose scale. It is especially destructive to rose bushes and raspberry bushes, and can be very destructive if remedies are not applied for its destruction.

It is easily destroyed if efforts be made in the spring before the buds burst. The dead parts of the rose or raspberry bushes should be cut out, and the other parts should be thoroughly sprayed with the boiled lime-sulfur solution, either home-made or commercial, just as for the San Jose scale. This is easily and cheaply made by boiling one pound of lime with two pounds of sulfur in one gallon of water, in any vessel excepting copper, for one hour, and then adding about six or seven times its bulk of water when one wishes to use it as a spray. If there is any difficulty in straining it, let it settle and use only the liquid that will go through the spray pump. Thoroughness in application of the liquid that is strong enough is the point in eradicating this pest as well as the San Jose scale, Oyster-shell scale and others of the scale family. If the wind is blowing two or three applications should be made from different directions so as to thoroughly cover the plants from top to bottom.

The above is the formula for all kinds of dormant trees, shrubs, bushes and vines. The commercial lime-sulfur solution can be used in place of the home-boiled if desired.

Organizing Farmers' Clubs.

Determined to secure the co-operation of the farmers in its agricultural work, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is now forming farmers' clubs on its Williamsport Division. A. E. Grove, the railroad's agent at Elizabethville, Pa., has been temporarily relieved in order that he may devote his time to the organization of these clubs, two of which are already in existence.

One of the clubs which Mr. Grove has started is located in Glen Iron, and another in Mifflinburg. The membership is composed of the very best farmers in the community, and the management of the clubs is entirely in the hands of the members. The Railroad management is confident that the work done by these clubs will be of material assistance in the agricultural campaign which the railroad company has been conducting for the past four years.

Florida Flower Seed.

I will send half a dozen separate kinds of seeds to any one who sends a stamp for package—the Royal Poinciana, a gorgeous, showy plant of fiery red flowers; the Palmetto Palm seed, with its beautiful broad deep cut leaves, and seed of the real Camphor Tree, also of the novel plant called Job's Tears, and Sweet Mignonnette and seed of the Southern Cotton; enough for you and your neighbor, so divide.

Cotton bears very large creamy white flowers, soon followed by the equally interesting cotton balls, a decided addition to house plants. With the seed will come general directions for culture.

As the season advances, should any one not be sent, it will be because they are all gone; another sort equally as nice will be sent in its place, anyway, so you get six varieties of seed.

Here and There.

For bargains in fine box papers, go to Green's.

Rev. Mr. From will preach in the Coleville chapel on Sunday, April 28, at 3.30 o'clock.

Miss Adel Harrar, of Williamsport, was this week a guest of Mrs. John Curtin at the latter's home on West Linn Street.

The Adams Express Company has established an office at Waddle, with the always genial and courteous John A. Hoy, as agent.

Ice Cream Cones that have the reputation of being pure and sweet can be bought at wholesale and retail from H. F. Alters, Bellefonte, Pa.

The remodeling of the office of the Brockerhoff House has made that place so inviting that passersby on Allegheny Street unconsciously walk in to see how nicely everything has been arranged.

Harrison and William Dukeman, of Clearfield, spent Monday in Bellefonte catching the spreckled beauties. Each one got 35 trout to his credit. One of the trout William caught measured 20 inches.

Edwin F. Garman has had prepared plans for a cozy home on the opposite corner of East High Street, across from the Robert Cole property. He expects to finish the house and occupy it before cold weather sets in.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Bess Godcharles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Godcharles, of Milton, to Wright Bigler, of Clearfield. Mr. Bilger is the son of the late Hon. and Mrs. Edmund A. Bigler.

Manager Frank Kern, of the City Steam Laundry, has just installed a curtain frame of the latest and most improved type, which equips that well known institution to give complete satisfaction in laundering the very finest lace curtains.

The Keichline garage several days ago received a carload of Ford automobiles from the factory. There were three in the lot, two runabouts and a taxicab. The taxicab is being used for public hire and particularly in hack service to and from trains.

This is the time of the year when careful housekeepers are putting away their woolen blankets for the summer. The City Steam Laundry is prepared to wash your woolen blankets and dry them in the open air, insuring thorough cleanliness. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Either today or tomorrow Robert Hood expects to open his large and modernly equipped billiard and pool parlor and cigar emporium in the Bush Arcade. The room, which is next door to Doll's bakery, has been completely overhauled and now presents a most attractive appearance.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian church will hold the second of the series of their weekly exchanges on next Saturday afternoon, April 20th., at two o'clock, in the store room of G. R. Spigelmyer, on Allegheny Street. The exchange will have on sale a supply of aprons, as well as pies, cakes, rolls, and candy.

Keep in mind the date for the Academy minstrels. The boys are hustling in getting ready for the big event and promise that this year's minstrels will be the best ever. Two performances will be given in Garman's Opera House, May 17 and 18. The proceeds will be devoted to defraying the expense of the new running track at Hughes Field, work on which was this week begun by R. B. Taylor, the contractor.

It is gratifying to the many friends of Mrs. William Laurie, who recently fell and fractured her hip, to know that she is resting comfortably. Every little thing possible that can be thought of to add to her comfort is being done by her daughters and friends. The attending physicians after a consultation decided not to attempt to reduce the fracture. Mrs. Samuel F. Eldredge, of Cape May, is spending some time here in order that she may aid in every way in caring for her mother.

The venerable David Rhinesmith last Saturday was eighty years of age, but despite his advanced his years he celebrated the occasion by attending to his work as usual. Mr. Rhinesmith enjoys remarkably good health and is able to be about and work every day. He has been a resident of Benner township for the last twenty-five years. His earlier life was spent in or about Centre Hall. He has the happy faculty of always remaining young in spirits, and so long as he feels young it makes no difference to him how old he may be in years. And this is a pretty good program for any man to adopt.

The work of putting in the concrete for the new High Street bridge was finished on Tuesday and the last of the paving brick will be put down before the end of the week. Just as soon as the bridge is completed R. B. Taylor, the contractor, will begin the work of paving that section of High Street between the Potter-Hoy hardware store and the Lauderbach-Barber store. The paving will be of brick. While the street paving is in progress the new electric street lamps will be installed. It is understood that Mrs. Louisa Bush plans replacing the sidewalk in front of the Bush House and also that in front of the McClain block, on the opposite side of the street, with modern concrete walks.

As a result of the death of the late Frank McCoy, a re-organization of the McCoy-Linn Iron Company has been effected. The new officers elected are Edmund Blanchard, president; L. T. Eddy, secretary, and John McCoy, treasurer. The election of Mr. Eddy as secretary of the company is a flattering tribute to his worth and a merited recognition of his many years of efficient and faithful service. Mr. Eddy has for fifty years been continuously engaged in the manufacture of charcoal iron, and November, last, marked forty years of continuous service with the McCoys. This is a record probably without a parallel in the manufacturing of charcoal iron and is one of which Mr. Eddy may justly be proud. Mr. Blanchard, who assumes the presidency of the company, has been actively identified with its management for a number of years. John McCoy, the treasurer, is rapidly advancing in business circles and with the training secured under the personal supervision of his father is especially well qualified to handle the additional duties entrusted to his care.

For a first class atomizer go to Green's.

Harry Cohen, one of the right hand men at Claster's store, was a business visitor to New York this week.

H. F. Alters is prepared to supply you with Pure and Sweet Ice Cream Cones at wholesale and retail.

Harry McCoy, Adams Express agent at Connellsville, spent Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCoy, on Thomas Street.

Mrs. C. U. Hoffer, of Philipsburg, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. John Hoffer, is visiting her father, C. T. Gerberick, on Thomas Street.

The opening game of the baseball season will be played tomorrow, Friday, afternoon, at 4 o'clock, on Hughes Field, the opposing teams being the Bellefonte Academy and the State College High School.

Miss Nellie B. Hockenbury, of Zion, and William Rachau, of Madisonburg, were married on Saturday evening of last week at the United Brethren parsonage in Bellefonte, Rev. C. W. Winey officiating.

Miss Goldie Joab, the leading lady in "The Morning After" company, which is to shortly appear in Bellefonte, took the part of "Nastura, the General's daughter," in the "Beauty Spot," when that show was at Garman's Opera House some time ago.

Mrs. E. R. Chambers and daughter, Helen, departed yesterday for Philadelphia, where they expect to make their home in the future. Such of their household goods as were not disposed of at public sale were shipped to Philadelphia earlier in the week.

When "The Morning After" company appears at Garman's Opera House it is particularly requested that the audience remain seated during the third act until the final drop of the curtain, as the feature musical number, "When Cupid comes a-tapping," will be rendered.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Fleming spent several days last week in Philipsburg, visiting at the home of their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. M. Ward Fleming. In the short time since being admitted to the Centre County bar Ward Fleming has made such rapid progress that his many friends look forward to a brilliant and successful career for him.

Dr. and Mrs. T. R. Hayes, who had been spending the winter in the south, and who more recently were in Atlantic City, returned home last week. Dr. Hayes has not been in the best of health of late and upon his arrival here he was removed to his home in the hospital ambulance. He has since been confined to his bed, but yesterday it was said that his condition was very much improved.

John McGinley, manufacturer of the well known and universally popular "Nittany Club" cigar, will open up probably today in a new stand in Bellefonte, having rented the building on High Street, next door to Shuey's grocery. The building is owned by the Foust estate. In the rear of the store room he has installed a pool table. The location is regarded as an exceptionally good one and John's numerous friends will wish him lots of good luck.

James H. Potter, president of the Potter-Hoy Hardware Company, returned home on Friday of last week from Baltimore, where he recently underwent a surgical operation. While somewhat weak as yet, his color is better than has been the case for years and he himself says that he feels better than for a long time past. It is his belief, and his appearance would seem to bear it out, that his general health will be far better in future than at any time in the last few years.

The efforts of the Woman's Club to raise funds for the Bellefonte hospital by collecting and selling old magazines, newspapers, rubber, etc., have proved quite successful. The first lot collected and just sold comprised 17720 pounds of old magazines, 10570 pounds of paper, 480 pounds of rags and 35 pounds of rubber. The lot was sold to a Lock Haven dealer, and above all expenses netted about $100 for the hospital. All of which shows what can be accomplished when the women of the town take charge of a matter.

William Burnside has opened his sand bank at Scotia for the season and has already booked orders for a large number of cars of sand, which is of an exceptionally high grade. He has extended his wharf and railroad siding and is now in a position to give all orders, no matter how large, prompt attention and immediate shipment. The sand from the Burnside bank is regarded as splendidly adapted for all purposes. This includes building sand, plaster sand and also cement sand. Much of the sand now being used about town for concreting purposes comes from the Burnside bank. Mr. Burnside is personally in charge of the bank and may be communicated with at Scotia either by mail or Commercial telephone.

Not Many Trout Caught.

Monday marked the opening of the trout season. As compared with recen years, and especially last year, few trou were caught on the first day. Some of the old-time anglers returned with well filled baskets, but the general run of Isaak Waltons got very few or none at all. A few trout measuring from 13 to 15 inches were caught, but by far the greater number were much smaller Since Monday fishermen have experienced the poorest kind of luck.

ORDINANCE WITHDRAWN

Scootac Power Franchise Matter Recalled From Council.

At the Monday night meeting of Bellefonte Council the ordinance recently introduced at the request of the Patterson Scootac Power Company, of Lock Haven, providing for a franchise in Bellefonte, was withdrawn. A message asking that the ordinance be withdrawn was received from Mr. Patterson when Council convened. No explanations were advanced and the presumption was that the promoters desired making some changes before asking Council to vote on the question of the franchise.

Council directed that May 10, at 7 o'clock P. M., be set aside for hearing water appeals by citizens.

In the abscence of Harry Keller, president, George Grimm, of the West Ward, presided. At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Grimm formally announced his intention to remove from Bellefonte and accordingly submitted his resignation, the same to take effect on May 1st. Unless Council shall allow the matter to go by default, that body will elect a member to the vacancy.

Council attended to a lot of routine matters called up for consideration. Complaint was filed in regard to some lack in uniformity in a number of gutters in East Bishop Street, where more or less damage is being done the recently built State road by defective drainage. Council ordered that the trouble be investigated and remedied.

The Logan Hose Company asked and were granted permission to enlarge the pool room in the hose house, which will be done by removing a partition separating two rooms. James Wian asked permission to tap the sewer on West Logan Street. Council formally accepted the proposition of an unnamed resident of Bellefonte to build a public fountain for horses. Just where the fountain is to be located has not been determined. The donor stipulated that there be no publicity. It is known that a woman made the offer, but her identity has not been revealed.

J. McC. Davis, proprietor of the Garman House, submitted a proposition to have a brick crossing built from his hotel to the Court House. He offered to furnish the necessary brick if the borough would put it down. A crossing has long been needed at that point, the traffic being especially heavy during court week. The need of the improvement is understood and appreciated by Council, the only hesitancy in accepting the offer submitted by Mr. Davis being due to doubt as to whether a crossing there would be a hindrance to teams passing up and down the hill. Council directed the Street Committee and the borough engineer to investigate the matter. If it is found possible to put down the crossing the improvement will be one that will be appreciated by many persons.

A petition was submitted to Council from residents of East High Street asking that some of the sidewalks in that end of town be repaired. The Street Committee was directed to attend to the matter.

Mrs. Mary Allen Marshall Dead.

Mrs. Mary Allen Marshall, widow of the late Joseph W. Marshall, died at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning of last week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles F. Cooke, in Bellefonte. She had been in failing health for some time past, but her passing away was rather sudden. For many years she was a well known and highly respected resident of Buffalo Run and the news of her death was received with the deepest sorrow by a wide circle of admiring friends. Funeral services were held on Sunday morning from the J. L. Marshall home, in Buffalo Run. A choir from Bellefonte participated in the services. Deceased was born in Dauphin County, March 9, 1825, her maiden name being Mary Allen. While she was still in her early years her parents removed to Centre County. She was married in December, 1849, to Joseph W. Marshall, and from that time until recently she resided on the farm in Buffalo Run. Some time ago she came to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cooke, and her health failing it was deemed best for her comfort that she remain. Her death ended her plans for returning to Buffalo Run when the weather had become warmer. A devout, christian woman, Mrs. Marshall was a life-long member of the Presbyterian church. Of nine children born eight survive her, as follows: William A., of Kansas City; Mrs. Charles F. Cook, Bellefonte; J. L. Marshall, of Buffalo Run, Mrs. Myra Musser, of Boggs township; Mrs. Harry Shivery, of Bellefonte; Mrs. Alice Alexander, of Unionville; Mrs. David Campbell, of Linden Hall, and James G., of Niagara Falls. The only brothers and sisters of the deceased preceded her to the grave.

Thomas Waddle Dead.

Thomas Waddle, a native of Centre county, and Jersey Shore's oldest resident, died on Saturday night at his home in that place aged 92 years and 8 months He was born at Rock Forge, and was a brother of the late Benner Waddle, who died several years ago at an advanced age. Mr. Waddle was a former treasurer of Lycoming county, and filled other offices of trust. He had been a devoted Methodist from his youth. Two sons, M. B. and Bayson W., both of Jersey Shore survive.

Suicide at Winburne.

Albert Olson, a young man of Winburne, committed suicide on Sunday. No reason has been given for his rash deed. The young man was aged about 22 years and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Olson. He had been out west, but reached home recently, and on Sunday in the kitchen of the parental home shot himself in the stomach, using a shotgun, the ball coming out at his back. He was removed to the Philipsburg hospital, where he died Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.
